

Hess Flight Throws Nazis Into Rare Turmoil, Hitler Calls High Leaders for Consultation; Churchill To Seek Information From Deserter

U. S. Expected To Ignore Nazi Red Sea Threat

Designation of Area as War Zone Brings No Action Here.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. Germany pointedly warned early today that any ship entering the Red Sea risked destruction by "mines or other weapons of war," but this stand was not expected to deter the United States government from its plan to rush supplies to Britain's Middle-Eastern forces.

Informed circles in Washington said the Berlin announcement defining an operations zone in the northern part of the Red sea was anticipated when President Roosevelt recently reopened that sea route to American shipping. The administration consistently has refused to recognize the legality of Germany's method of blockade and sea warfare.

Bases Far Distant. Many observers also questioned Germany's ability to harass Red sea shipping by air attack unless she establishes closer bases than those presently available in Libya. It is approximately a 1,400-mile round trip by air from Egypt's western frontier to the edge of the Red sea.

German submarines would have to face the threat of Britain's powerful naval defenses at the Gulf of Aden in order to get into the Red sea. It was believed in Washington that United States officials already had taken Germany's official threat into consideration in any steps to provide protection for any American ships moving into the Red sea. What those steps might be were secret, but the President has emphasized that United States naval patrols now operating over an extended area in the Atlantic also will go anywhere deemed necessary for Western Hemisphere defense.

Ships Promised. In New York, intercoastal shipping operators who conferred with United States Maritime Commission heads asserted they would turn over approximately 20 ships to the government within the next month, and 20 more by mid-July to rush supplies to Egypt via the Red sea.

Thus the intercoastal operators would provide some 400,000 tons of the 2,000,000-ton shipping pool the President recently ordered established for the service of this country and England.

The German warning stemmed from a government already aroused by the extended United States naval patrols operating in the Atlantic, and the growing American aid to Britain.

Oden Removed From Office at State Hospital

Longino Named Superintendent at Ouster Meeting With Governor.

Governor Talmadge and the State Welfare Board yesterday ousted Dr. J. W. Oden as superintendent of the state hospital at Milledgeville, but gave no reasons for their action.

In a three-way change the board elevated Dr. L. P. Longino, clinical director at the hospital, to Dr. Oden's post and ordered Dr. Edward W. Schwall, who is now superintendent of the Training School for Mental Defectives at Gracewood, near Augusta, to succeed Dr. Longino.

Dr. Oden, who headed the Gracewood institution before he went to the state hospital as superintendent in 1933, will be allowed to go back to his former position if he desires. He said yesterday, however, he did not know whether he would accept the Gracewood offer.

Governor Talmadge called members of the welfare board into his office and changes were authorized in an executive session.

After the conference the Governor said there was no particular complaint against Dr. Oden and pointed out that he made a good record at Gracewood. He evaded questions as to the specific reasons for the ouster.

B. S. Miller, director of the State Hospital, said he was not present at the meeting.

Higher Loans On 1941 Crops Voted by House

Increased Cost to Consumers Small, Official Declares.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. WASHINGTON, May 13.—The house overwhelmingly approved higher loans to farmers today on this year's crops of wheat, cotton, corn, tobacco and rice, with stiff penalties for exceeding marketing quotas.

Agriculture Department officials had estimated that the higher loans would increase food costs to consumers by 10 to 20 per cent, but Edward A. O'Neal, American Farm Bureau president, today denied these contentions. He said that "the increased cost to the consumer would be of very little consequence" and estimated that pork would go up 5 per cent, bread one-sixth cent a loaf and cotton 1.6 to 1.8 per cent.

Full Parity Seen.

By a roll call vote of 275 to 63, the house approved and sent to the senate a compromise bill to require the government to make loans of 85 per cent of parity on the five crops.

Farm members said that if a farmer chose to put his crop in the new loan program at 85 per cent of parity, his soil conservation benefits and cash parity payments would result in an approximate yield of full parity—a goal which has not been reached in many years.

(Parity prices are those which would give farmers purchasing power, in terms of other commodities, equal to that of 1909-1914).

The legislation would require loans as follows: Wheat, 96.22 cents a bushel; corn, 69.87 cents; cotton, 13.49 cents a pound; flue-cured tobacco, 19 cents a pound; rice, $1.96. Current market prices are approximately as follows: Wheat, $1; corn, 77 cents; cotton, 12.30 cents.

Alternative Possible. Although it was assumed in both the senate and house that President Roosevelt would sign the new legislation, some members said a veto would mean that they might have to fall back on outright parity appropriations to maintain farm prices.

They said a veto would pave the way for final approval of a $450,000,000 parity fund voted by the senate in the Agriculture Department supply bill, despite administration opposition. The house, sticking to the President's budget estimates, approved $212,000,000.

ONE TO HARVARD. But she's not seeking a Ph. D. She's just going to add a little glamor to the Harvard Lampoon's spring dance at Cambridge. When Marjorie Woodworth, of Hollywood, got her invitation, she took the first train east. "You are the most promising beauty in Hollywood," the Harvard message said. She took it at face value. Or did they take her at face value?

Dances, Baton-Twirling, Drill To Add Variety to Music Show

800 Elementary School Children, Decked in Red, White and Blue Costumes, To Take Part in Dancing Event; Drum Majors To Strut.

By HAROLD MARTIN. There'll be all the music a man could want when that colossal and gigantic spectacle, the Greater Atlanta Music Festival, sponsored by The Constitution, and free to everybody, comes back to Grant field at 8 o'clock Friday night for the third time in as many years.

But you won't be bored even if you're stone deaf. There'll be plenty to look at as well as plenty to hear. There'll be, for instance, the folk dancing of 800 small fry from Atlanta's elementary schools, all decked out in gay costumes of red, white and blue.

They wowed 28,000 people last year and they ought to do it again. Their opening number will be a square dance, to the tune of "Little Log Cabin in the Lane," with Miss Helen Simpson, of Ragsdale school at the piano, and Mrs. Grace Vaughan, of Cable Piano Company, caressing the keyboard of the Solovox. There'll be a dance their teachers made up out of their heads which itself is a whang-doodle, and there will be an intricate maneuver called the Snail.

After the Snail the assembled 800 will chant the pledge to the flag, with Superintendent Willis A. Sutton and Assistant Superintendent M. A. Coleman leading. Then they close with the spectacle.

Exceeds Major Victory, Exult British Heads

See Evidence of Failing Confidence, Rotten Nazi System.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. LONDON, May 14.—(Wednesday)—Rudolf Hess shortly will be faced by Prime Minister Winston Churchill himself in a private interview affording him the chance to tell the story of his aerial runaway from Germany and to give up vital secrets that might conceivably affect the future course of war, it was disclosed today.

Whether Hitler's long-time friend and turncoat deputy will describe the real inside story of Germany to the veteran journalist, Churchill, was a matter of high speculation.

But highly placed Britons already were declaring that the beetle-browed German's almost incredible flight to Britain had given this country more military advantage "than a major victory on the battlefield."

The effect on German morale of his flight alone was worth that much, they said, and Churchill himself was quick to seize upon this point when he declared on learning of Hess' arrival:

"The maggot is in the apple."

When and where the prime minister and the surrendered prisoner of war will meet was not disclosed, but the London Daily Mail said Hess already had been moved from a Glasgow hospital to "a place nearer London."

Speaks Freely.

And already, it said, while Hess recovers from a broken ankle bone suffered in his parachute descent to a Scottish moor, British officials are talking to him.

Hess has described to these questioners real conditions in Germany and amid the Nazi hierarchy, the paper said, adding:

"He spoke freely and frankly and is said to have indicated his personal disgust with the Nazi party and its policy. The tension between party leaders appears to have reached a state of considerable acuteness in recent weeks."

Authoritative British sources declared, however, that the desertion of the No. 3 Nazi was concrete evidence that Hess "and others in the inner councils of the Nazis" had decided Germany could not beat a Britain backed by full United States aid.

Members of commons speculated even that Hess quarreled with other Nazis because he already knew that Hitler had abandoned his plan for invasion of England.

"Hess would not have come to Britain if he believed Hitler had a chance to stage a successful invasion of England in the near future," reliable informants said.

"For he'd then be in the power of those with whom he so elegantly has fallen out."

(The British short-wave radio already was spreading the news of his desertion far and wide. Today it quoted this Cairo comment: "The first rat to leave the ship.")

The house of commons, meeting in temporary quarters because of the destruction wrought on its

Strike Halts Machinegun Production

Huge Colt's Arms Plant Shut Down; Parley Called Today.

By The Associated Press. Production of machineguns and small arms for the United States and British governments at the Colt's Patent Fire Arms Manufacturing Company, one of the nation's largest armament plants, ceased yesterday when a reported majority of the 5,600 employees went on strike. Tentative arrangements were made for a conference today.

The main plant, sprawling for four blocks along the banks of the Connecticut river, at Hartford, Conn., shut down at noon.

Mayor Thomas J. Spellacy, urging in a statement that "every effort" be made to resume production at "the only shop in the United States manufacturing machine guns," said his office would give any assistance it could.

Robert F. Mintz, of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers, CIO, who claims "about 75 per cent" of the employees have joined his union, notified the company that the strikers were "ready to begin negotiations immediately for a collective bargaining agreement."

Dwight G. Phelps, Colt's vice president, said a meeting between the strikers and company management and attended also by Deputy State Labor Commissioner Morgan Mooney, and Thomas F. Burns, of the Office of Production Management, was slated tentatively for 9:30 a. m. (E. S. T.) today.

Mooney and Burns, who flew from Washington, had sought the conference.

Mintz, asserting the union "had no part" in calling the strike, however, said the employees had authorized his organization to represent them and were asking a flat 20 cents an hour increase in pay, time-and-a-half for overtime and a week's vacation with pay.

Austrian 'Putsch' Followed by Blomberg Scandal Recalled by Expert.

Editor's Note: The following is by Wade Werner, who spent many years in Europe for the Associated Press. He was stationed at Berlin for four years, before becoming Moscow bureau chief in 1938.

By WADE WERNER. NEW YORK, May 13.—(AP)—No matter why Rudolf Hess fled from Germany into the arms of Hitler's enemies, the world can be rather sure of one thing: The German military machine will be galvanized into action. There will be a new drive in some direction soon.

That is what happened after the Blomberg scandal of 1938, when Hitler's Defense Minister Field Marshal Werner von Blomberg was ousted after his marriage to a woman who turned out to be just

Baseball Ticker Tapes Taken Out to Chagrin of Local Fans

Only Seven Machines Are Now Left in Entire City.

By JACK TROY. Most of the "tape worms" in the city of Atlanta have been removed.

Sounds like a great feat of surgery, doesn't it?

But it's really only a figure of speech. A "tape worm" in baseball corresponds to the "bug" in golf. Just an old ticker addict, following the inning-by-inning score of his favorite baseball team.

But no more does Joe Fan have the opportunity to drop in at pool-room or tavern to watch the tape. In Atlanta, a city of more than 300,000, this time-honored pastime has ended, at least for the nonce.

There are only seven baseball tickers in the entire city, and only newspapers, press services, radio stations and the Ponce de Leon ball park have them. The Constitution learned yesterday.

No general police order has been issued for the removal of tickers.

Amateur Rose Grower Show Proves 'Rosy'

Enthusiastic Gathering Sees Mary Warren Win Two Grand Prizes.

By CAROLYN MCKENZIE.

Yes, 'tis true, a rose by any other name might smell as sweet. But, after seeing the many enthusiastic amateur rose growers at the Atlanta Rose Show yesterday, and after hearing them chatter about long stems, brilliant-colored petals, and the growing conditions for priceless specimens, one wonders if a rose by another name would have any odor at all to these flower lovers.

The Druid Hills Garden Club, sponsor of the show, opened the competition to every amateur rose grower in Georgia. Then it secured a corps of well-known judges to scale the specimens on the points of form, substance, color, stem and foliage, and size.

Miss Mary Lee Warren, of the Habersham club, walked away with the laurels of the day by winning along with some smaller prizes the two grand awards for the best rose in the show and the sweepstake.

The left-wing ballroom of the Biltmore hotel was covered with hundreds of rose blossoms for the show. They exhibited in garden club arrangements, climber groups, individual arrangements and all in all 33 different groups which converted the entire room into a floral palace.

Winners Listed.

Before the exhibits opened for inspection, judges scaled the blossoms and Mrs. Charles LeRoux, of the Druid Hills club, classification chairman, announced the following list of prize winners: Miss Mary Lee Warren, best rose in the show, a "Charlotte Armstrong," for which she received the H. G. Hastings' perpetual trophy; Miss Mary Lee Warren, sweepstakes winner; best dinner table arrangement, Peachtree Park Garden Club; best luncheon table arrangement, Lenox Park Garden Club; best garden club arrangement, Lullwater Garden Club, which received the Mrs. Clyde King Jr. trophy; best specimen climber, Mrs. Thomas H. Scott, "Climbing Sunburst."

Individual flower arrangements: Miss Mary Lee Warren, best pink roses in blue basket; Mrs. Jack Martin, best pink roses in clear glass; and Mrs. Harvey Payne, best rest roses.

They come from 15 schools, to wit: Luckie, Williams, Spring, Jerome Jones, Morningside, Slaton, Mary Lin, Home Park, Ragdale, Harris, Sylvan Hills, Whiteford, Inman, Forrest and James L. Key. Another spectacular show will be the baton-twirling exhibition by a prize-winning quartet, chosen from the ranks of all the town's twirlers in a contest at 7:30, before the main show starts. Anybody who loves the antics of a drum-major or majorette can get a double dose of twirling by coming early. (Cliff Camenson will be performing on the Solovox, too.)

The twirlers should be in fine feather because they will have just won themselves $60 in prizes—$20 each for the best boy and girl, $10 apiece for the runners-up. The contest will be judged by John J. Henney, director of bands at Stetson University. Parents of losers are requested not to pelt him with fruit until after the main show is over.

There will be a patriotic note, too. Six crack, prize-winning companies from the cities' outstanding military schools, G. M. A., Boys' High, Tech High, Decatur Boys' High, North Fulton and Russell High, will put on a dazzling exhibition drill. It will include close order drills, extended maneuvers, the spectacular Butts manual, which is the old manual of arms with a lot of frills, and a calisthenics exhibition with 120 men going through an 150-stunt routine in perfect timing without an order.

On top of all that, there'll be the fireworks. But that's another story.

Atlanta Leads Postmasters U. S. in Ratio of To Hear Talk Women to Men By Governor

84.9 Males to Each 100 Females, Setting Pace for Cities.

Atlanta has the lowest sex ratio—that is, the number of males per 100 females—of any of the 92 cities of more than 100,000 population in the United States, it was revealed yesterday in a census release made public by C. P. Persons, district manager of the Atlanta office, Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce.

Atlanta stacks up statistically with a percentage of 84.9 males to every 100 females. Of this number, there are 93,783 white males and 104,351 white females, for a majority of 10,564 white females.

The non-white population shows a total of 45,034 non-white males and 59,120 non-white females, for a majority of 14,086 non-white females.

In 1930 there were 86,536 white males and 93,712 white females, and among the non-white population in 1930 there were 39,957 non-white males and 50,161 non-white females.

The 1940 census showed San Francisco has 190 non-white males per 100 non-white females.

Huiet Indorses 4-Year Terms

Ben T. Huiet, State Commissioner of Labor, yesterday added his indorsement to constitutional amendments providing for four-year terms for governor and constitutional officers which will be voted on in the June 3 election.

The commissioner said he was asking his friends to put forth every effort to help enact these amendments, pointing out that one of the benefits to be derived would be more economical and efficient government.

Comptroller General Homer C. Parker and School Superintendent M. D. Collins are on record as favoring the amendments, while Attorney General Ellis Arnall and State Treasurer George B. Hamilton oppose them. Secretary of State John B. Wilson was non-committal. Huiet is not affected by the amendment.

Ensign Solves Love Problem; Outwits Navy

Has Father Fly Fiancee to Coast When Faced With 'No Leave.'

In times like these the Navy does not permit its young officers to go traveling 3,000 miles across country just to get married.

On top of that, the state of California is very sniffling about people rushing into matrimony without a week's notice, and so on.

All of which was quite a problem to Ensign William J. Hogan III, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Hogan, of 2065 Spring Lake drive, an officer on the U. S. S. Talbot at San Diego, and his fiancee, Miss Willena Dean, daughter of Mrs. G. C. Dean, of 1460 Peachtree street.

But not for long. Ensign Dean figured it out. He wired his father, an Atlanta realtor, to load his bride-to-be aboard a plane and hurry on out. Which was done, solving the problem of leave, which he couldn't get. Then they hurried over to Yuma, Arizona, where there is no "wait-a-week" law, and there, on Sunday, in the Presbyterian church, the knot was tied.

Now everybody's happy, and Mr. and Mrs. William J. Hogan III will be at home to their friends in their apartment in San Diego.

Ensign Hogan is a graduate of Tech, where he was a naval reserve officer. Mrs. Hogan is a graduate of Girls' High.

Tech Seeks More Control of WGST

Headed by Sandy Beaver, chairman of the State Board of Regents, a delegation left yesterday afternoon for Washington to confer with officials of the Federal Communications Commission concerning the granting of more authority to Georgia Tech in the operation of radio station WGST.

Included in the party were Dr. M. L. Brittain, president of Georgia Tech; E. J. Clower, assistant attorney general, and Clarence Calhoun, president of the Southern Broadcasting Company.

The State Board of Regents passed a resolution asking that the contract with the Southern Broadcasting Company be amended so as to give Georgia Tech more supervision over policies and programs of the station.

Marist To Hold Military Program

Fortieth annual military exercises and prom of Marist College will be held at 4 o'clock Friday afternoon on the college campus.

Awards will include the fifth district chapter, Reserve Officers' Association silver medal, presented by Captain Lucius Deck, to the most outstanding cadet; an expert rifleman medal awarded by the National Rifle Association to Cadet Lieutenant Leo Coletti, and the Major Luther P. Call Jr. silver medal for best individual drills in the seventh and eighth grade, presented to Cadet Joe Zawistowski.

Following the battalion parade, the officers and non-commissioned officers will receive their commissions as a promenade of the cadets will close the program.

BRIDE FLIES—Miss Willena Dean, of Atlanta, last week flew to San Diego with the father of her groom-to-be for a Yuma, Arizona, wedding because her fiance, a naval officer, couldn't get leave to come home for the June nuptials.

GROOM—Ensign William J. Hogan III, son of W. J. Hogan, prominent Atlanta realtor, couldn't leave his ship to come home for his own wedding. So he asked his father to bring his bride by air to San Diego. They wed last Sunday.

Senate Seats Rosier After Odd Row

WASHINGTON, May 13.—(P)—The senate voted today to seat Joseph Rosier, former president of the National Education Association, as Democratic Senator from West Virginia, succeeding M. M. Neely, who resigned to become governor, and who appointed him.

The action came after the senate had voted 40 to 38 against seating Clarence Martin, who had been appointed by former Governor Homer A. Holt.

Neely and Rosier supporters in the senate based their successful fight for his approval upon contentions that Neely simultaneously left the senate and became governor, and therefore the senate vacancy occurred in his term as governor.

Opponents, backing designation of Martin, former president of the American Bar Association, by Holt, argued that an interval elapsed between Neely's resignation and induction as governor. In that interval, they contended, Holt was empowered to fill the vacant senate seat.

Artist Shute Lauds Coming Art Fair Here

Atlanta Expert Accepts
Post as Chairman of Event.

By WILLARD COPE.

"The greatest opportunity ever offered the individual artist and the public alike in Atlanta."

This was the description applied yesterday to The Constitution's forthcoming Art Fair by Ben Shute, artist and head of the Fine Arts Department of the High Museum and Art School, in agreeing to serve as chairman of the Acceptance Committee of the fair.

The event will be held Friday and Saturday, May 30 and 31, in Joel Hurt Park, between the City Auditorium and the Hurt building. No charge of any character will be assessed artists or the public, and the most comprehensive display of natural talent in the city's history is forecast.

"Every artist in Atlanta and Georgia and every art-lover must be very happy over this development," Chairman Shute declared. "Fairs or shows of this kind have been held in many cities for years past. They have always been great successes and have done much to encourage artists and to develop an artistic taste in the public.

Simplicity Praised.

"I am sure, too, that all of the artists of Atlanta and this section will be pleased with the simplicity of operation. Every one is eligible to take part, and we hope that many will also accept the invitation to bring their easels and materials and work in the park during the two days of the fair."

Application blanks will be supplied by The Constitution upon application. A general invitation, giving complete explanation, was issued yesterday. The text follows in full:

"The Constitution, interested in the cultural life of Atlanta and Georgia and eager to encourage and develop our native southern genius, is arranging an art fair for Friday and Saturday, May 30 and 31, in beautiful Joel Hurt park, between the City Auditorium and the Hurt building.

"There will be no charge of any character.

"We plan to conduct the fair

"ART OPPORTUNITY"—Ben Shute, widely recognized Atlanta artist and head of the fine arts department of the High Museum, who yesterday hailed The Constitution's Art Fair, May 30 and 31, as a great opportunity for individual artists and the public alike. There will be no entry charge of any sort.

along the lines generally followed by such events in Greenwich Village, New York, Rittenhouse Square, Philadelphia, and as they were held in the past in Paris.

"Every artist is free to exhibit a reasonable number of examples of his or her own work. Possibly three to six items will be the maximum, not counting a compact, single portfolio. Every artist may bring easel, palette and brushes and is encouraged to work during the fair. Each must bring his own folding stool, as there are no seating facilities.

"The objects exhibited may be sold by the artist. Overnight storage will be provided in the city auditorium.

"The Constitution will publish appropriate news stories before the opening to assure good attendance.

"It is our hope to make this a gala occasion, and wish specifically to invite every artist to take part."

Mutual Severs Relations With Broadcasters

WOR, WGN, Don Lee
Chain Quit National Association.

ST. LOUIS, May 13.—(P)—The Mutual Broadcasting System, in disagreement with the two other major radio networks over the ASCAP music war and the government's anti-monopoly policy, late today broke off relations with the National Association of Broadcasters and three principal stockholders withdrew their membership.

They are the Bamberger Broadcasting Service, Inc., WOR, Newark, N. J.; WGN, Inc., Chicago, and the Don Lee Broadcasting System of Hollywood.

Both WOR and WGN are 50,000-watt stations. The Don Lee System comprises several stations on the west coast.

The National Association of Independent Network affiliates—privately owned stations using network programs—entered the fight against the Federal Communications Commission's recent order cracking down on the networks.

Reasons for Mutual's action were given in a letter to Neville Miller, president of NAB, from Alfred J. McCosker, president of WOR and chairman of the board of Mutual.

"It is now entirely clear that your association is no longer representative of the entire industry," McCosker declared, "and that you are taking a position in various matters adverse to our interests and in favor of those of others."

PROBE OF NEW FCC REGULATIONS PROPOSED

WASHINGTON, May 13.—(P)—A sweeping congressional investigation of broadcasting rules and regulations laid down May 2 by the communications commission was proposed in the senate today by Senator White, Republican, Maine, in a resolution, asking that the commission's order be held in abeyance until 60 days after an inquiry report had been filed.

The commission's rules, among other things, would make it necessary for the National Broadcasting Company to dispose of one of its networks; would sharply regulate the affiliation contracts between networks and stations, and would prohibit the licensing of two stations in the same area to one network, unless it can be shown that the public interest requires otherwise.

White asked an investigation by the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee. His resolution declared that the rules and regulations were "alleged to constitute an attempt upon the part of the commission to exercise a supervisory control of the programs, of the business management and of the policy to be employed by radio broadcast stations."

It cited a supreme court opinion of March 25, 1940, to the effect that the communications act gave the commission no supervisory control of programs, business management or policy.

Singer Stockholders Demand Accounting
NEW YORK, May 13.—(P)—Charging that investments of $84,000,000 in United States Treasury notes, Canadian and state municipal and railway bonds were "excessive and unwarranted," three stockholders of the Singer Manufacturing Company today brought two suits to compel the company and six directors to render an accounting.

The stockholders also alleged that the company had $47,000,000 in surplus and undivided profits and that retention of this huge sum was "unwarranted and unnecessary."

Pandora Dies, Leaving Only 4 Pandas in U. S.
NEW YORK, May 13.—(P)—Pandora, a giant panda, died today, the second panda to die in captivity in this country. For several months she had suffered from convulsive attacks, but X-ray examinations failed to disclose the cause.

She was brought to the Bronx Zoo June 10, 1938, from western China. There are four remaining pandas in the United States, two each in the Chicago and St. Louis zoos.

Ticker Tapes Removed Here

according to Chief of Police Hornsby, but the fact remains that three more cancellations yesterday removed the last of the public tickers.

It is understood that a few broad hints have been dropped relative to wagering on results, and is responsible for the tickers being removed.

Lou Merlin, a baseball fan, visited The Constitution yesterday to find out how a couple of teams were coming along and revealed the removal of tickers from all the old familiar places. He was accompanied by Ray Fishel, whose likeness as he glances at the ticker tape in The Constitution sports department accompanies this piece.

Merlin's explanation was well-comed, inasmuch as the sports department had been deluged by calls on the baseball games and couldn't understand the suddenness of it.

"No, sir, no general order has gone out about tickers," Chief Hornsby responded, in answer to a query. "Some of the boys might have warned people about gambling in certain places, but I'm not sure about that."

At any rate, for a town so large, Atlanta is unique among American cities. It doesn't have one solitary place where a fan can drop in and find out inning-by-inning baseball results. Only press and radio can furnish the information.

Fortunately, The Constitution goes on the street with a complete early edition carrying the baseball results, and fans probably will find this a more desirable medium than cver.

British Smash H. O. Hubert Jr. Axis Advance Named Head of In Salum Area Georgia Elks

Cairo Reports Disrupted Columns Battered by RAF Bombs.

CAIRO, Egypt, May 13.—(P)—Attempts of Axis forces to advance in the region of Salum, the farthest point of their month-old charge into Egypt, have been dealt a smashing blow by British mechanized troops, the British middle east command announced today.

Five Axis columns, scouting "in force" in the blazing north African heat, were said to have been met by British advance forces and thrown into retreat. Royal Air Force planes completed the rout of the disrupted German and Italian columns, the communique said.

"Our air forces have been afforded particularly good targets by the withdrawing enemy," the report declared.

Fascists Made Prisoners.
Successes also were described in the Ethiopian theater, where 200 more Italians were said to have been captured as imperial forces continued their closing-in tactics against the fortress of Amba Alaji, where 38,000 Italians are making a final stand. Fighting there was going on in steaming terrain drenched by summer rains, the British said.

The British Mediterranean fleet was back at anchor at Alexandria, refueling and taking on ammunition after an exciting week aloft in which it escorted long trains of supply ships eastward through the Mediterranean, fought off several spectacular attacks by Nazi torpedo bombers and made a side trip to bombard the Axis-held port of Bengasi, Libya. Not a ship of the battle fleet was damaged, observers said.

Roosevelt Reaches Crete.
Reliable sources here reported that Iraq was taking advantage of a Turkish offer to mediate the guerrilla warfare between the British and Iraqis.

Captain James Roosevelt delivered a note from his father to King George II of Greece in Crete and then returned to Cairo tonight.

While the letter was written before the Greek military collapse and removal of the Greek government to Crete to continue the struggle, it was understood that young Roosevelt expressed to the king regret that American aid did not arrive in time and assured him that the promise of material help still holds good in connection with the Greeks' continuing struggle against the Nazis.

Young Roosevelt, an officer in the U. S. Marines, is on an observation mission, having come here by way of Chungking, China, and Iraq.

Invalid Veteran Chooses Jail Over Alimony

Held for Contempt,
Driver Says He'll Stay
'From Now On.'

An invalid World War veteran decided yesterday to "spend from now on" in Fulton Tower rather than pay his estranged wife $5 per month in addition to the $30 she receives from his government pension.

He is E. C. Driver, of 188 Waverly way, and he began his sentence yesterday on a contempt of court charge after he refused flatly to pay the alimony required in a domestic relations court decision last December.

The 50-year-old veteran was brought before Judge Virlyn B. Moore upon complaint of his wife, Mrs. Annie May Driver, who stated that he owed her $25 in alimony and $40 in attorneys' fees which the court ordered him to pay.

"I can't afford to pay her any more than I'm doing now," Driver said. "I get $120 per month for my total disability and the veteran's bureau awarded her $30 of that when we separated. I'd be better off in jail than to pay any more."

Judge Moore pointed out that Driver was in contempt of a court requirement and that there was only one possible decision: pay the money or go to jail.

"I'll go to jail, then," he said. Driver's Negro attendant, who guided the paralyzed veteran's wheelchair, quit after the sentence was imposed and went in search of another job.

The veteran refused an offer from Judge Moore to let the attendant accompany him in jail. "I'll be there too long for that," he said, "and besides, they have plenty of help over there that can do the job."

Driver and his wife were married in 1931, but separated in September of last year. In October Driver sued for divorce on charges of misconduct. He also charged, in his petition, that she told him: "I didn't marry you, I married your pension check."

Suffering from partial paralysis, Driver has been confined to a wheelchair since he was discharged from the 17th Infantry after the World War.

As he was wheeled out of the sheriff's office to the jail, Driver added, "I'll stay in the Big Rock from now on before I put up any other cent. They may have the satisfaction of seeing me in prison, but they won't have the satisfaction of spending my money."

Plymouth Fair Draws Many to Piedmont Park

Array of New Models, Miniature of Factory, Open to Public.

By DUDLEY GLASS.

Out at the northern end of Piedmont park, called the polo field because once upon a time there was a polo game there, there was set up yesterday a circus.

Pat Dimmette, who runs the show, doesn't like it to be called a circus. He said it has no smell of lions and no sawdust. And no lemonade vendors.

He insists it is the Plymouth Motor Fair, dedicated to impressing upon the public the virtues of the automobile by that name.

But it looks like a circus. A small circus. It has a bunch of tents—all blue and apparently waterproof. And its own electric power plant. And a bally-hoo truck for use in small town parades. And a whole caravan of trucks and trailers and sedans and station wagons all dressed up in red and blue.

"Boy, it causes a sensation when we pass through a town," said Dimmette. "And we've passed through a lot of 'em. We've been down in Florida and we're going to Alabama and Tennessee. And points west."

The Plymouth Motor Fair is a free show, come one, come all. All the afternoons and evenings—through Sunday—it will show its stuff.

There is a "talking car," whose brand it is unnecessary to name, which will answer any and all questions addressed to it by the audience. That is, about cylinders and carburetors and wheelbases. Questions about whether Bacon wrote Shakespeare are barred.

These is a motion picture show called the "Magic Theater" where the films, odd as it may seem, are devoted to the manufacture of motor cars. And a miniature model of the big plant in Detroit, in which tiny cars run hither and thither as the case may be.

The Plymouth Motor Fair has been traveling about. It makes a date, engages a site, and sets up. A dozen of its "hands" are old Ringling circus men.

They liked the Piedmont park site more than a little. It is level, it is covered with good grass, and there is plenty of city water available—and electric current if the show's own plant breaks down. Which it rarely does.

One of the hands told me he remembered the joint. He said he drove a pacin' hoss on a half-mile track right there, away back before the World War. He admitted, too, that he'd rather drive a good pacin' hoss than a truck. The job didn't last as long but there was more kick in it.

He also said that if he wasn't getting mixed up between towns, there used to be a swell old gentleman with a white moustache who drove a tallyho coach with four horses out to that park along in the cool of evening. Which, of course, was Colonel Bob Lowry.

Southern Buys $12,275,000 of Freight Cars

4,025 All-Steel Units Needed for Defense Hauling.

The Southern Railway has placed three orders for 4,025 all-steel freight cars, costing $12,275,000, to care for a huge anticipated increase in defense traffic, R. B. Pegram, vice president, announced here yesterday.

"Delivery as fast as possible" will be urged, Pegram said, to fill shortages such as railroads all over the country are beginning to feel.

The orders went out as car manufacturers already were engaged in filling a substantial backlog of orders prompted by increased traffic demands, it was said.

Largest single order, for 2,500 cars to cost $7,500,000, went to the Mount Vernon Car Manufacturing Company, Mount Vernon, Illinois.

An order for 1,500 50-ton box cars, at a cost of $4,200,000, was let to the Pullman Car Manufacturing Company, in Bessemer, Ala. The St. Louis Car Company, St. Louis, Mo., received the smallest order, for 25 70-foot baggage-express cars, costing $575,000.

Gallup Poll Reveals: Monroe Doctrine Is Still Alive

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP, Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

PRINCETON, N. J., May 13.—President Roosevelt has frequently stressed the importance of a united hemisphere defense for North and South America. The question which naturally arises is whether American public opinion is deeply concerned with what happens in South America, or whether the people are largely indifferent to the fate of the republics to the south.

A nation-wide survey of public opinion by the Institute indicates that the future safety of South America is a question of great moment to the American people, and that the Monroe Doctrine is a very live principle in their minds.

Ready To Fight. An overwhelming majority are willing to have the United States go to war if any South American country is invaded. Far from being indifferent to the fate of those nations, voters in favor of military action if South America is threatened have nearly tripled in number in three years.

The trend of sentiment is shown in four successive Institute surveys, the first in March, 1938, and the latest completed within the last week. Note the difference in attitude before and after the outbreak of the European war in September, 1939.

Trend Cited. Those with opinions on the subject voted as follows:

	Yes	No
March, 1938	33%	67%
September, 1939	53%	47%
February, 1941	86%	14%
Today	86%	14%

The South American issue is one about which people have strong opinions. Only one person in every 20 (6 per cent) was undecided.

A week ago the Institute reported a survey showing the number of people who would want the United States to fight if Canada—the country immediately to the north—were invaded. The results showed that 90 per cent would be willing to fight under such circumstances—a figure only slightly higher than the number who would want to fight if countries to the south of the United States were attacked.

last week. Note the difference in attitude before and after the outbreak of the European war in September, 1939.

If Brazil, Argentina, Chile or any other Central or South American country is actually attacked by any European power, do you think the United States should fight to keep that European power out?"

Trend Cited. Those with opinions on the subject voted as follows:

	Yes	No
March, 1938	33%	67%
September, 1939	53%	47%

Torrance said a full day's program is being planned for the alumni on Saturday, May 31, and that they are being urged to remain over until Sunday.

Continuation of President's Emergency Monetary Authority Favored.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—(AP)—A bill extending President Roosevelt's emergency monetary powers for two years won approval of the House Coinage Committee so quickly today that an amendment designed to forestall further devaluation of the dollar slipped into the measure almost unnoticed.

Acting Chairman Cochran, Democrat, Missouri, said he would recall the members tomorrow, and in the hope that the full democratic strength would be present, would attempt to eliminate the amendment.

"Some of the boys didn't know what they were voting for," Cochran said. "We'll have the votes tomorrow to knock the amendment out. That proposition would certainly tie the President's hands."

The bill would extend for two years from June 30 the Treasury's stabilization fund and the President's devaluation power. But Representative Andresen, Republican, Minnesota, sponsored an amendment, reported to have been accepted 9 to 7, to provide that "no additional amounts of foreign gold shall be purchased" at more than $35 an ounce—the current price.

American Mussolinis

There are a number of black pages in the record of American reactions to the outbreak of Nazi aggression against the free nations. Some of these pages are blackened by witting or unwitting Fifth Columnists. Some have been made dark by the procrastinations and blindness of congressional minorities. Some are those which tell the story of pro-Nazi things as the mis-called "America First" committee and other groups of Nazi fellow-travelers.

But among all the sombre pages, the blackest of all is that which records the apparently unending strikes by organized labor in defense industry.

Many Americans, realizing that capital has no enviable record in past attitude toward organized labor, have sought to find excuses for the strikes and walkouts that have so tragically delayed our war and defense programs.

Today almost all of those who were apologists for labor in the past are experiencing a sickness of the spirit as they read of new strikes and threatened strikes; of the walkout in 11 California shipyards with more than half a billion in warship and defense contracts; of the strike deadline for Thursday morning set for 60 General Motors Corporation plants, and of other similar cases.

Whatever the sins of capital in the past, there can be little doubt, today, in America organized labor has adopted for itself the role that Mussolini filled in Europe, that of the stabber in the back of free peoples when they face their most desperate struggle.

There can be no justification for strikes in defense industry at this time. The excuses given, in almost all cases, are so thin as to strengthen suspicion that they are but that, excuses, to hide a real and very tragic determination to sabotage the national defense effort and to deliver this country, together with the other free nations, into the lustful hands of Nazidom.

One strike is called because of the employment of a handful of civil service employees and WPA workers at a naval base. The next step, only a short one, will be a strike because not all the enlisted personnel of Navy and of Army are members in good standing of some labor union.

In the case of General Motors, the union demands a basic wage increase of 10 cents per hour. The corporation has offered an increase, smaller than this, but not unsubstantial. The company-offered increase is, in any event, considerably greater than any increase in the costs of living for recent months.

These, and similar so-called reasons, are given for the different strikes. They are so specious there can be but one conclusion.

Leaders of the organized workers must be engineering the strikes for hidden, ulterior motives. Either they are using the emergency to force formerly free American workers into the dues-paying ranks of their unions, or they are deliberately sabotaging the nation's defense program as agents for the Axis powers.

Two things are sure. The first is that, if these strikes do not cease, Nazification of this country is a foregone conclusion. It is to be hoped the strikes will cease by the voluntary action of labor and of industry. But, if not by this means, they must be stopped, by congressional or governmental action if necessary.

The second thing sure is that there must be hundreds of thousands of loyal Americans who are members of the very unions causing the trouble, who are ashamed and sickened by the role they and their fellows are being forced into. The fact they are helpless pawns in the hands of the union leaders is but evidence of the dictatorial control that ill-judged laws and irresponsible power have placed in the hands of these chieftains.

Senator Russell, of Georgia, has served warning. Unless, he has declared, labor and capital promptly get together and compose all their differences for the duration of the emergency, congress, already impatient at these sabotaging delays, will act to compel continued operation of the plants.

Strike developments of the past week indicate the time to make good that promise is here.

Human Question Mark

It is futile to speculate upon the story behind the self-surrender of Rudolf Hess, Number Three Nazi, to the British. Until he himself divulges the situation which impelled him to make that strange flight to Scotland and to bail out by parachute of the stolen Messerschmidt he flew, the world can only guess as to the facts which impelled him to so desperate an act.

Perhaps his desertion of the Nazi cause is inspired by the same basic reason which makes gangsters fall out in this country. Possibly there has been a falling out among the Nazi leaders and Hess knew that, if he stayed, he was marked for "liquidation." And, so, he chose the only country within reach, Britain, where he would be reasonably safe from Nazi vengeance.

That, however, like all other theories, is but idle speculation.

In the meantime his flight and surrender to the British makes, by all odds, the most fascinating individual news story that has come out of the war. It has everything for human interest. Drama, surprise, suspense and mystery.

When the full story is told, it will surpass fiction in its thrill.

Cost of Living

Agricultural officials in Washington have warned that, if congress votes higher crop loans, an increase in cost to the consumer of 10 to 20 per cent may be expected on such things as meats, dairy products, eggs and poultry.

Thus, once again, the long-suffering consumer would be made to pay for a new experiment in lifting the economic status of one class of the population, by the bootstraps.

While few men will deny that the lot of the farmer in the United States has been unenviable for several decades, it is doubtful if the various alleged panaceas tried by the government have been worth what they have cost.

The fundamental cause of the farmer's economic troubles is to be found in the policy of protecting industry by high tariffs, while the farmer was for long left to struggle under a system which compelled him to sell his products at prices set by world-wide supply and demand, although he paid tariff-enhanced prices for all the supplies and equipment that went into the raising of those products.

Thus the farmer paid tribute to industry and, until government attempted to partially equalize the situation through so-called "parity payments," he was helpless.

Of course it is the consumer who has, through higher prices, eventually paid for those parity payments.

Now congress is planning to again raise those payments which will, inevitably, bring higher prices and thus subtract the cost of the plan from consumers' pocketbooks.

Any interference with the laws of supply and demand, as affecting prices, can result only in an ever-mounting spiral of more and more artificial stimulation, as government tries, inevitably without success, to balance one group against the other.

In this instance the spiral began with protective tariffs on behalf of industry. It has now turned to parity payments for farm products. And organized labor injects itself into the picture with ever-increasing demands for higher wages. Which, in turn, mean higher prices for manufactured products. Which spells high living costs and which, again, create the demand for still higher wages.

Then, again, the farmer has to be helped to make it possible for him to pay the higher costs of the manufactured things he must have.

And all the while, the consumers—which means the workers and the farmers and the great middle classes all together—keep paying through higher costs and higher taxes.

It would seem, at this time, with employment steadily increasing because of the defense program, with the stupendous demand for products to feed and clothe and house and equip the millions of men being called out of civilian life for military training, with the vast demands for foods to be shipped to Britain under the lease-lend act, that the natural laws of supply and demand would, in due course, create such a bullish market on farm products that agriculture would receive adequate prices, without the artificial stimulus of government-fixed minima.

Georgia Editors Say:

FOR THEY SERVE BEST
(From The American Times-Record.)
The Sumter county commissioners adopted a resolution at their monthly meeting recently providing that any employee of the county who volunteers for military service or is called into service through the selective service act will be granted a leave of absence and will be restored to his former status when he is discharged. This is a commendable action by the board. Similar action is being taken by most private business concerns also. Certainly a man should not be penalized through the loss of his job or seniority by reason of his service to his country.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

THE RAF COMES HERE WASHINGTON, May 13.—Another encouraging sign of the passing of the era of futility in Washington is the quiet completion of plans for a big program for training British air pilots on American soil. The program itself is fully roughed out. The legal obstacles have been surmounted or conjured away. The necessary facilities and personnel are being contracted for. And, unless there is a completely unforeseen upset, young candidates for the RAF will soon be receiving preliminary training here at the rate of 3,000 a year.

The apprentice fliers will come from Britain and the empire in batches of 1,200, for a 20-week course that is to carry them up to the combat-training stage. The course will be given at six of the large American flying schools at fields now being selected. Two of the fields will be in California in the Los Angeles-San Diego area, one will be in Florida near Miami, and one each in Texas, Oklahoma and Georgia.

By an elaborate arrangement between the British and American authorities, the required training planes and all other materials, including what may be needed to build dormitories and the like for the trainees, will be lease-loaned to the British by the Army. The British air ministry will then pay for the building, and carry the flying school contracts for instructors, mechanics and supervisors. Nor is this six-school, 3,000-trainee program more than a mere beginning. Training planes are now coming off our production lines in quantity. It will soon be possible to do twice as much—indeed, much more than twice as much. The day can be foreseen when all RAF apprentice pilots will get the bulk of their instruction here, or in Canada, or elsewhere in the empire, returning to the firing line only to be put in shape for actual fighting.

LEGAL HOCUS-POCUS The new step is more than a re-affirmation of the American policy of all aid to Britain. It is also an important strategic maneuver. In order to undertake the air counteroffensive against Germany when America's bombers are ready, the British must have every usable air field cleared for action. The removal from Britain of pilot training will release highly usable field space and field facilities for other purposes. Thus the claim of Charles A. Lindbergh, that the British do not have the fields from which to undertake an air counteroffensive, has already in part been answered by action.

It is tragic, of course, that the step was not taken long before. The British first suggested they would like to train pilots here very shortly after the fall of France. At that time it was thought politically inadvisable, and the State Department, in its usual role of obstacle builder, raised objections. Thereafter some relaxations of the rules were permitted. American volunteers for the RAF were allowed to get their training here at schools paid by the air ministry. Because the problem was so critical, a number of British bomber crews were permitted to resign from the RAF and come to this country as ostensible civilians to learn how to handle the American giant bombers in classes at Wright Field. But it was not until after the passage of the lease-lend bill that Major General H. H. Arnold was able to tell the British that the way was clear for a big program.

Again the legal hocus-pocus that has to be gone through seems slightly silly, and not a little infuriating, in view of the crude realities of the war situation. Despite the best efforts of the able young lawyers on Harry L. Hopkins' central staff, it took two months to straighten out the various legal tangles. As it is, the apprentice pilots will come here on the official errand of learning ferry and transport flying. This is a disadvantage, as was proved at Wright Field, where very young men fresh from 18 months of black-out, removed from all authority, and preparing for work of desperate danger, rather naturally showed a tendency to put more energy into pleasure than study. But the main thing is that the delay and the hocus-pocus are over and work can now begin.

JOINT STAFF The British-American air training program is particularly striking in that, at a time, as an example of the sort of helpful and effective work that can be carried out with the greatest ease, given a little time, a little good will, and plenty of co-operation. At this crisis of the war the most intelligent officers, both British and American, are increasingly convinced of the need for a joint strategy committee for the double purpose of initiating such projects as the new air training program, and passing on the much larger problems that now daily confront the two countries.

Informal liaisons already exist, both with the Army and Navy, being maintained by high-ranking British army, navy and air officers now in this country. Yet, when the effectiveness of co-operation is so clearly demonstrated in little, it would seem only sensible to place the co-operative effort on a broad, continuous basis.

Triumphs Of Medicine.

When you are feeling down because of the viciousness of humanity in this day, when you read of the horrors of modern war in Europe and begin to think the world is a pretty hopeless project, there is one subject you can turn to and dredge a little encouragement about the future of the race.

That is the advance of preventive medicine. Science has done perhaps its most miraculous job in the war against disease, a job not over, of course, but continuing with astonishing progress.

A few of us were talking the other day about the changes that have been wrought in the conditions of life for the average man, in the past few decades. From that we got to talking about the way man lived a few centuries ago, during Europe's Middle Ages, and it was easy to move from that general subject to the more specialized theme of man's health and average longevity of life.

Think of the epidemics that used to ravage a whole continent. The Black Plague, that wiped out half or more of entire cities and for which the people knew no remedy. Death by the Black Plague must have been a particularly horrible thing, both for those who died and those who witnessed the dead.

The Black Plague exists today only in the history books. It has been stamped out and is known no more.

"The French Disease."

In the days of Cellini there was a plague rampant over Europe, known under different names in different countries. In Britain they called it the "French Disease." In France it was the "Italian Disease," and in Italy it was the "German Disease." Each nation, you see, tried to blame it on another. It wrecked tens of thousands of lives and killed untold thousands.

That disease has not yet been eliminated from among mankind, but at least we know how it can be almost entirely wiped out. We know it as syphilis. Science, in this instance, has provided the cure and in some nations, notably Norway, it has been almost entirely done away with. Whereas it is less than half a century since the cure was discovered and, before that, men and women died like flies from its ravages.

Smallpox is almost gone. A case is rare today, thanks to vaccination and education.

Did you know they had a disease in Europe, a few hundred years ago, they called "the pox." It was akin to smallpox but far worse. As much worse as smallpox itself is worse than chickenpox. That's how they got the name "smallpox." For, compared to the genuine pox, it was comparatively simple.

Well, "the pox" has gone, almost together. Smallpox has almost gone and chickenpox is far less frequent than it used to be.

Each Year An Advance.

I noticed in The Constitution, yesterday, that efforts of the Georgia Department of Health and of the WPA resulted in 47,400 fewer cases of malaria in this state, in 1940, than five years ago. Also, there were 237 fewer deaths from this cause last year than in 1939.

The discovery that the malaria germ was carried by mosquitoes is comparatively recent. With the parallel knowledge that if you did away with the swampy places where mosquitoes breed, you would do away with a lot of malaria. It is largely by swamp drainage, in many Georgia counties, that this great showing has been made possible in the fight against malaria.

Cancer can be cured if discovered in early stages. Better conditions of living and better food supplies will do away, someday, with tuberculosis.

Always, medical science and research have shown the way to halt, to end forever, some such scourge of the human race.

After all, I think the world is getting to be a better place in which to live, even though we are, at present, under the dark cloud of temporary insanity. But only temporary, thank God.

Word Stories

By W. Worthington Wells

Much has been said and written in past weeks about textbooks that were too LAUDATORY in the dictator form of government and, at least by implication, belittled the American form of government.

Laudatory is an adjective pronounced LAUD-a-to-ry with the primary accent on the first syllable and a second accent on the third. The phonetic spelling is lod-a-to-ry. The (o) in the first syllable is like that in orb, (a) as that in sofa, the (o) in (to) as that in old, ri as spelled.

Laudatory pertains to praise; approve; sanction; credit; love, etc.

Laudatory remarks are those in favor of; approval of; high estimation; regard; uncritical.

All laudatory remarks are favorable to the subject about which it was said or written.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Exposing Fallacies NEW YORK, May 13.—Senator Robert M. La Follette, of Wisconsin, the chairman of the so-called Civil Liberties Committee of the senate, made a speech last week in which he referred to "some obvious fallacies" in the understanding of the reasons for strikes in the defense industries. These must be exposed, he said, and I suggest that while we are exposing fallacies we consider also the fallacy of Robert M. La Follette. Many public men, notably Senator George W. Norris, of Nebraska; Senator Bob Wagner, of New York, and Senator La Follette, get by indefinitely on past performance; or early publicity. Senator Norris, who once spoke with the most sonorous piety about the sanctity of elections, saying, "If we wrongfully influence the voters we are striking at the very foundation of free government," was one of those who recently attended the disgraceful ceremony in the capital in which a statue to the late Huey Long was unveiled to mock those very principles.

Other attendants at the same evil affair, to free government from the clutches of the corrupt and vicious campaigner, were John H. Overton, of Louisiana, whom Huey Long elected by fraud and who Senator Norris did not exert himself to expel, and Allen J. Ellender, another member of the late dictator's corrupt and terroristic gang. Senator Ellender was one of the managers of the fraudulent and vicious campaign by which Senator Overton was elected, but Senator Norris, nevertheless, joined them in a tribute to their late Fuehrer, thus signifying a change of attitude toward those who strike "at the very foundations of free government."

It is commonly understood now that Senator Wagner was not the actual author of the labor relations act but merely the sponsor of a scheme to create a great class political group resembling the labor front in Germany which was sold to congress and the citizens as labor's magna charta. He refused to accede to amendments intended to protect the citizen from terrorism and the economic death penalty by the field managers of this labor front and even though it has since been demonstrated beyond question that his law had this effect, he still opposes amendment.

So time and developments show clearly where Senator Wagner stands on the question of the human dignity of those who insist on a right to work at lawful occupations without the sanction of racketeers or Communists and subject to the public laws and taxes only. He is against them. Senator La Follette, however, has been going along smoothly, posturing gracefully and accepting bows, and cannot be blamed for thinking himself quite a master of deception. He has been making a vast publicity for Senator La Follette through an investigation of "violations of the right of free speech and assembly and interference with the right of labor to bargain collectively."

In his New York speech he said the adoption of laws to bring labor unions under legal controls would constitute a legislative lynching bee, blamed employers for the majority of defense strikes and said the notion that strikes are an enjoyable exercise for the worker is so silly that it would evaporate automatically.

Promoting Career He is clever, but he can be analyzed if you refuse to let him confuse you. In the first place, of course, labor unions, as he knows, are as guilty as any employer ever was of violations of the right of free speech and of the worker's parallel right not to join a union, but the senator doesn't go into that. He is serving his reputation and promoting his career with his political following by pretending to believe that employers only are guilty of wrongs against workers and of violence in union troubles.

To blame employers for the majority of defense strikes, of course, is to confuse the question, because rarely do we get to the bottom of the causes of such strikes and, moreover, penalties already exist for guilty employers. He only insists that it would be "lynching" to adopt laws whereby professional, irresponsible union leaders could be punished equally for equal offenses. And, of course, nobody ever has contended that workers enjoy striking, so that strawmen blows away on a gust of the senator's own hot air.

On the contrary, he knows that thousands of strikers have bitterly resented the compulsion to strike at the orders of their union bosses. But Senator La Follette couldn't be expected to go into that, because he has been getting away with an act for years and doesn't expect to be challenged.

"Pernicious Fallacy" I notice in one of the reports of the senate's long and expensive hearings a reference to the Little Steel strike at Johnstown which will indicate how fallacious he is. This portion undertakes to expose as a fallacy the "rumored invasion" of Johnstown by 40,000 mine workers, and the senator obviously believes that by editorializing he has reduced the danger of that invasion to a mere myth.

But the files will show that at times John L. Lewis wired President Roosevelt warning him of this invasion and attempting to disown responsibility for violence that might occur. So the threat was not so fallacious, after all.

Sensor La Follette has had a good press for years, but all public men should be called up for periodic reputation inspection. Many of them develop a disease that might be called pernicious fallacy.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

1941 LONE EAGLE—PATRONAGE BOSS When Rudolf Hess, called "Hess, the Indispensable," floated down from his abandoned plane to the harsh surface of a Scottish moor, he created the most fantastic story of the present war.

Hess is important for propaganda purposes. He also is important because of the effect his departure will have in Germany.

Hess was the patronage boss of the party. It must not be forgotten that the Nazis are a political party. It is a party which has jobs to give—all the jobs must be given to members of "the party."

Hess was the man who handled the patronage. It was difficult to see Hitler except through Hess. Any political or party business first had to be cleared through Hess. His office was thronged—as Governor Eugene Talmadge's is thronged—with job seekers. All political parties, of all countries, have that trouble.

His office was called—in German slang—"The Waiting Wall," because so many waited there on failing to get jobs. Even Rudolf Hess, with all the political jobs of Germany at his disposal, couldn't satisfy the job seekers. (That ought to comfort his excellency, the Governor of Georgia, who seems to be worried by job hunters.)

Any politician will understand why Hess will be missed. To "the boys" Hess was the leader of the party. They understood that Adolf was the head man. But for years they had been "seeing Hess." That meant he was known to all the ward leaders, to all the city leaders, to all the great and small who make up the political leadership of a party.

At all party meetings the greatest applause was for "The Fuehrer." But next came Hess. He got more applause than Goering. Hess was the man that all the rank and file of the party knew. They couldn't get close to Adolf. He was the fellow who made things go. He was a sort of god to them. It was to Hess they could go to get jobs, to "fix" things.

If you do not think that sort of fellow will be missed just ask any of your political friends.

THE PERFECT FRIEND Hess was known as the perfect friend. He never wanted anything for himself. He was not ambitious. This was why Hitler chose him. He knew Hess would not use the power of patronage and the power gained from handling party affairs, to climb up the political ladder.

He was the faithful shadow. He headed no government department. He was a "fixer," not merely for "the boys," but also a fixer for the various departments. When they got into a row, it was Hess who got them back into line. "The Fuehrer" never had to bother.

It was not Hess, as the news reports said, who took charge of the blood purge of June 29, 1935. It was to Hess that Hitler turned for the public relations job. It was Hess who made the first "explanation."

Hess was welcomed by the old-line "bully boys" who made up the party. It must not be forgotten that the original Hitler organization was composed largely of tough lads. It was the perverted Ernest Roehm group which was "liquidated" in the purge of 1934. Hitler had to get rid of this worst of his supporters to obtain the support of the army.

Hess was the first—and almost the only "gentleman"—to join the Hitler forces. He was a flying officer during the first World War. Since that time he had kept up his flying. He did a good job of navigating and flying on his flight to England. He joined the Hitler forces after attending several speeches by Hitler. Hitler promised to restore Germany. Hess, a former flying officer, burned with bitterness because of the defeat of Germany and the poor state into which she had fallen. Hitler hated the Communists. So did Hess. He was an intense idealist. So, for that matter, was Hitler when he was preaching his doctrines in the beer basements of Munich. He and Hess had much in common.

AN ALL-OUT NAZI Hess was an all-out Nazi. His own story is that he became a Nationalist and a Socialist before the war and anti-Semitic after the war. His anti-Semitism was as cruel and as extreme as that of any of the top-flight Nazis.

An effort now is being made to have it appear he suddenly has developed certain eccentricities. He long has been a fanatic on faith healing. For a time he belonged to an established church which believes in cures obtained by prayer alone. He left it and founded his own group, which established a hospital in Dresden where laying on of hands and various other "faith" methods of curing diseases are treated. He long has been reported as having this mystic side to his personality.

Hess' real importance lies in the fact that to the party he was the practical leader. It was he who controlled "the boys," who gave jobs, who "fixed" things. That he should desert to England will cause many a Teutonic mind to use some new geriatric grooves. If "the boss" quits—well, it is something to think about. It is entirely possible Hess did brood about the collaboration with Russia. He always was—as the real idealists among the Nazis always were—anti-Communist.

It was Hess who, in 1937, worked with the Trotsky faction in an effort to bring about revolution in Russia and to unseat Stalin. They failed and the trials of that failure led to the second great purge in Russia.

Hess would not have liked the pact with Russia, practical and valuable though it was—and is.

This is something of the new Lone Eagle—the man who has contributed the most fantastic story of the war.

A Tax Is Ruinous if It Takes the Money That Kept the Business Running

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

Everybody knows the government cannot spend extra billions without levying extra taxes, and people are little inclined to grumble about burdens that are unavoidable.

But one group must grumble loudly and quickly to save itself and the nation from unjust and unnecessary injury.

When congressmen face the unpleasant job of finding new tax money, they are not greatly concerned about fair play and the good of the country. They try to be politic, but they usually get the money in the way that is easiest.

The easiest way to get more income-tax money is to soak the well-to-do middle class.

Well, why not? The answer is that there's neither sense nor profit in riding a free horse to death.

Study the tax returns and you will find that this group, whether measured by its number or the total of its income, is already paying far more than its fair share of the income tax. The only excuse for bleeding it further is that it still has some money and can be imposed on with relative safety—that is, political safety.

But anything that injures the prosperous middle class is economic dynamite.

It is this class that provides the market for luxury goods—for automobiles, refrigerators, heating plants, vacuum cleaners, electric stoves. It is the class to which magazine advertisers appeal. It is, in short, the economic as well as the moral and political backbone of the nation.

The family that has $2,500 or $10,000 a year lives well and divides the money among home-town merchants. Bankrupt such families and business will virtually come to an end. What the tax man takes from them is taken out of retail trade.

Why not take more from the big fellow who makes $100,000, or $200,000, or $500,000? He can give up 90 per cent of his income and still live well. Nor would it hurt business, for while he makes 10 to 50 times as much as the $10,000 man, he doesn't buy 10 to 50 refrigerators, or use that proportion of clothing or beefsteak.

There are plenty of things to tax—betting tickets among them—that will bring in revenue without strangling business. Why kill the geese that lay the golden eggs?

OFF THE RECORD—By Ed Reed

"He's an emergency case—all the other beds in the hospital were full."

Dudley Glass

Another round of luncheons, teas and autographing receptions for a Georgia author. This time it is Thelma Thompson, of Thomaston, known in her home town as Mrs. Walter Slayden—and a very nice young person. She doesn't look like she could write as two good books as "Give Us This Night" and "Dr. Red." But it seems she did.

"Dr. Red" has just been published. Like her first novel, it deals somewhat with people of the textile mills. Naturally, because Miss Thompson has lived in a textile town. Silvertown, which acquired some years ago the Hightower cotton mills, or part of them, is just outside Thomaston.

This isn't a book review department, but I'll take a chance and say I like "Dr. Red" or a large part of it. I like the atmosphere and the romance. And I'm glad the author didn't bear down on the oppression of the textile workers. Indeed, she gives the impression they're a pretty well-off bunch of folk.

But she takes occasion to introduce Hitlerism and sabotage. She brings in a colony of Nazi-minded Germans who move in and blow up the factory. She probably knows more about that than I do, but I can't quite see a colony of Germans working in a Georgia cotton mill at this day and time. There has been so little immigration in years.

Still, "Dr. Red" is an interesting story and well told. And if Miss Thompson, whom I admire hugely, thinks this is "damning her with faint praise," as the poet observed, I'll have to take it. I have been cussed out by more famous folk than she is. And, though I'm pretty well battered up and limping slightly, I survive. When I meet her at luncheon Friday I hope she will smile. She has a nice smile.

Not in the Market

One of life's little mysteries is how names get on mailing lists—and stick there. I still get mail addressed to an office I occupied 17 years ago—for three months. This time it's a personally addressed letter offering me a bargain in a panacea for tobacco worms. It will enable me to harvest my crop of tobacco with no further trouble.

I'll bite on most anything, but the only edible crop we raise out at our half-acre farm is garlic. And I don't know where to find that.

I dislike to be discourteous to anyone who writes me a letter, but three-cent stamps run into money. It is cheaper to inform my correspondent through this column that I do not raise tobacco. In its native form. It is all

Thelma Thompson Writes a Book—Pretty Good One

I can do to raise cash enough for cigarettes, at a store where they sell 'em for 15 cents straight, all taxes included.

I would like to buy some of his anti-tobacco worm remedy and if he'd call personally he might sell me a carload—on terms. But, honestly, I don't know how I'd use it.

P. S. I don't need a caterpillar tractor, neither. Nor an all-steel windmill. But if manufacturers like to spend money on postage that's O. K. with me. It does help Uncle Sam. I'd like to have an extra good offer on an oversize wastepaper basket.

Bikes and Ice Cream

Mayor Roy Lee Crow, I think, has accomplished something in fixing up traffic conditions. He hasn't solved the problem—and who could? But he's got started, with one-way streets and what-all.

I wonder what—if anything—he can do about bicyclists. And ice cream vendors.

I realize that messenger boys wouldn't be riding bicycles if they could become vice presidents. And that no man would push an ice cream wagon up and down a street all day if he could find a better job.

But boy bicyclists and pushers of ice cream carts do clog up traffic and there's no getting around that.

Take Spring street at a busy hour. Two lanes of traffic each way. And a lot of cars parked, law or no law.

And a boy on a bicycle—intent on his job and trying hard to earn his wages, I'll admit—can scare the insides out of any driver of a car.

There's a rule—I don't think it's a law—which says a pedestrian should walk on the left side of a highway, so he can see cars coming and get out of their way. Some do and some don't.

Is a bicyclist a pedestrian? Or a motorist? He seems never to have determined his status. He rides this way and that way. He pays no attention to red or green lights. And he seems always to be in front of your bumpers—and he's tough on your brakes.

And those little ice cream pushers. Are they vehicles or what? Are they forbidden the sidewalks? Probably. But they get out in the street and clog up more traffic than a broken-down Model T. If you try to swing left and pass 'em somebody will rip off your fender. They jog on and on and on and I've never seen anybody buy an ice cream cone off one of them—but they probably do.

These are a few things our mayor must clear up if he makes good on his promises to speed up traffic. I don't envy him his job.

Only Draftees In 1-A Expect Early Induction

Deferred Students Will Fill State's Quota to July 1.

Any draft registrant who is not now in class 1-A or is not a student deferred until the end of the present college year will not likely be called during the first official year of selective service, ending July 1, state officials gave as their opinion yesterday.

Georgia now has 7,593 young men in the Army through selective service, 4,473 in class 1-A, and 700 deferred students who probably will be put into the Army next month.

Induction of these will bring the number of Georgians in the Army to 12,766, almost the exact quota allowed the state for the first year of the draft.

Sufficient calls have not yet been received to take care of those now in 1-A. Eleven quotas have been assigned the state, asking for 10,355 men, and a twelfth call for 600 to be inducted in June has been promised.

Although no revision of the draft law will be necessary to continue taking men after July 1, authorities believe that relatively few men will be inducted before October, when other selectees begin completing their year's service for Uncle Sam.

Arnall on Spot; He Must Rule On Age-Old Question in Hurry

A question that must have originated with Adam and Eve was before Attorney General Ellis Arnall yesterday for an official ruling.

The question: Who constitutes the head of a family—the husband or the wife?

It all came about because Major John Goodwin, superintendent of the State Highway Patrol, was confronted with a knotty problem in the sale of drivers' licenses.

The new drivers' license law enacted by the last legislature provides that the head of the family shall pay $1 for his license and that his spouse shall get hers for an additional 50 cents.

"But suppose," queried Major Goodwin, "the wife gets her license first and pays $1 for it. Can the husband then come along and obtain his for 50 cents?"

The attorney general was perplexed. He began to dig out his lawbooks and finally concluded he would have to wait until today to render his official opinion.

Emory Glee Club In Final Concert

The Emory Glee Club will celebrate its 25th anniversary tonight at 8:30 o'clock at the Glenn Memorial auditorium with a final concert for this season in which they will offer a salute to Atlanta.

The Emory singers have just returned from a tour of Alabama, South Carolina, Georgia and Florida. Particularly proud are the members, under the direction of Dr. Malcolm Dewey, of their appearance at the Hollywood Beach hotel, which precipitated a broadcast over Miami's WIOD radio station.

Tonight, returning to its native haunt, the Glee Club will offer a program of negro spirituals, which is a specialty of these southern singers, together with some nursery rhymes and classical music. The public is invited for a small admission charge.

CUTTER BACK IN SERVICE.

Michigan's Coast Guard has added the 51-year-old cutter Marigold to its fleet in line with orders occasioned by the national defense program. The ship, recommissioned after a year and a half of inactivity, makes a total of four Coast Guard cutters and three patrol boats now attached to the Detroit base.

CARTOON REPRESENTS SITUATION IN AMERICA

Editor Constitution: That cartoon of Rollin in your Sunday, May 11, 1941, edition entitled "Adolph's Pet," represents the true situation here in America if the utterances and activities of certain subversive appeasers can be taken as an index.

Your artist represents Hitler pacifying a rattlesnake with the music of his flute. He represented the rattler as being "American Disunity" and the music produced by the flute, to wit, "Germany Cannot Be Defeated," and his contribution plate labeled "Every Little Helps."

Here in America such subtle societies were organized as "The America First Committee," "The American Committee of One Million," "The German-American Bund" and other similar organizations. In order to deceive the Christian people "The Christian Front," "The Oxford Movement" and other so-called Christian organizations whose purpose was designed to outlast war.

Of course nobody wants a war and it was easy to deceive a gullible people. Much money has been subscribed to these organizations designed to destroy our democratic institutions, which is now being used to write and to wire our senators and congressmen to receive them and to make them think that a majority of their constituency oppose all measures designed to aid Britain and the rest of the democracies of the world, as well as to employ speakers and to hire demonstrators and to purchase radio time.

The trouble with America today is the fact that all of us have not awoken to the true situation that now confronts us.

AMERICANS RULED BY REASON KNOW

Editor Constitution: You are depicting emotional appeal in war? You know you cannot open the door to your power house with the key of your library nor that of your drawing room.

All Americans ruled by reason are willing and anxious to give the President the green light.

They know that a stitch in time saves nine.

Those who say they are confused, seek refuge behind the phrase, British propaganda, have to have an emotional appeal to make them understand. Their name is legion.

Good Morning

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

The Southern Baptist Convention, in its 96th year, will open its 1941 session at 2 o'clock, central time, in the municipal auditorium at Birmingham, this afternoon, with Dr. W. W. Hamilton, of New Orleans, in the chair. The convention has met in Birmingham twice before, first in 1891, and again in 1931. The convention was organized at Augusta, Ga., in 1845. Plans have already been adopted to hold the centennial session of the convention in Augusta in 1945.

I do not have the statistical report for this year, but the report made at Baltimore in 1940, showed that there were, at that time, 25,018 churches in the convention, with a total membership of 4,949,174, which was a net gain of 178,989 over the previous year. I saw the first draft of the report for this year some time ago, and the number of members had gone well beyond 5,000,000. Last year there were 269,155 baptisms—the largest number of additions by baptism of any year in the history of the convention.

The reports of the various mission agencies at Birmingham this week will show the largest gain in gifts to home and foreign missions in many years. In addition to the regular gifts for foreign missions, Southern Baptists raised approximately $200,000 during the past year as a special gift to the British Baptist Missionary Society with which to carry on the foreign mission work of British Baptists. The convention at Birmingham this week will adopt a program of special gifts for the British Baptist Missionary Society for the coming year, and also for war relief among other Baptist groups throughout the war areas of the world.

The convention includes 18 southern states—from Maryland to the east to Arizona in the west, and from Illinois north to Florida in the south. The convention has three theological seminaries, located at Louisville, Ky.; Ft. Worth, Texas, and New Orleans, La. Its foreign mission board is located in Richmond, and its home mission board is located in Atlanta. The Sunday School Board, which will celebrate its 50th anniversary at Birmingham, where it was organized in 1891, is located at Nashville. The relief and annuity board is located at Dallas. Its laymen's organization is located at Memphis, and the women's organization is located at Birmingham. The convention assists in the support of a Negro theological seminary at Nashville. The young people's organization is located at Nashville, under the direction of the Sunday School Board, as is its student organization.

The meeting of the Southern Baptist Convention attracts an annual average attendance of 8,000, which is one of the largest religious gatherings in the world. San Antonio, Texas, is making a strong bid for the 1942 convention, but one can never tell what Baptists will do.

Axis Diplomats Reach Ankara For New Talk

'Come as a Dove,' Von Papen States; Turkey Resolute, Say Leaders

ANKARA, Turkey, May 13. (Delayed)—German Ambassador Franz von Papen arrived in Ankara from Germany by plane tonight and was greeted at the airport by diplomatic representatives of the Axis.

Besides German, Italian, Japanese, Hungarian and Bulgarian representatives, a Spanish diplomat also was on hand.

"I come as a dove of peace, bearing an olive branch," declared Von Papen, in jovial mood. "I assure you, you can all spend the summer pleasantly at the beaches."

Commenting on reports that Germany plans a campaign in the Near East, possibly through Syria, one high Turkish official declared that "Turkey will never abandon her British alliance, which is mutually profitable."

He said that regardless of what Germany does "Turkey will hold her original decisions."

An observer recently returned from Syria asserted that should France order the passage of German troops through Syria they would meet resistance. He added that France has sufficient forces in Syria to resist invasion.

Exceeds Major Victory, Exults British Leaders

chamber by Saturday night's Nazi raid, heard from Prime Minister Winston Churchill that he worked on the case personally most of last night.

He deferred a detailed statement, but he remarked: "... This is one of those cases in which the imagination is somewhat baffled by the facts as they present themselves."

The house, in high humor, roared with laughter.

No Peace Plan.
Officials understandably were loath to divulge what specific military advantage Britain might gain from the 800-mile flight of Hess to Scotland, although there was one report he had brought defeating and vital information concerning Germany's air force.

Authorized statements stressed that Hess had no specific message, that he carried no peace plan, and his desertion was dictated by purely personal motives.

But they said that Hess had quarreled with "others in the Nazi gang" and that his flight showed clearly "the core of Germany is rotten."

Some conclusions were made available to the press on the basis of an interview which Ivone Kirkpatrick, former counselor of the British embassy in Berlin, had with Hess in Scotland. Kirkpatrick rick, while in Berlin, was a close acquaintance of the deputy Fuehrer.

Hess is sane and healthy, except for a leg injury.

He is being treated as a prisoner-of-war at a secret place of confinement. No reporters may see him.

He brought no special message to Britain, no "peace plan."

If his flight was a trick, "it was a very, very strange one."

Alfred Duff Cooper, the minister of information, whose job it now is to make the most effective possible propaganda use of the affair Hess, told a luncheon:

First Breach Since 1934.
"I can only say that his arrival here shows the first breach in the Nazi party that has occurred since Hitler murdered a huge bloc of his own followers on June 30, 1934."

He referred to the blood purge. An exultant press splashed such phrases as these:

Lord Beaverbrook's Evening Standard:

"Millions of Germans were deceived enough to regard the Fuehrer as the great regenerator of a new and noble Germany... the terrible myth is stripped bare. The awful legend is killed... it has been stabbed by its first disciple."

The Daily Sketch:

"Has there been some bitter quarrel between him (Hess) and Hitler? And did Hess have to fly for his life?"

Other sources contended that the Hess flight would be impossible to explain to the German people and that the Nazi story he was insane would not be believed.

"Crazy men don't fly planes 800 miles," they said.

It was recalled that he had made one of the principal speeches at the Hitler birthday celebration April 20.

Again and again, the press hammered away at the point that Hess always had been considered the embodiment of Nazi faith in the Fuehrer.

"He was," said the Standard, "in one sense the original Nazi."

In indirect reply to German statements that Hess' health had failed until his mind gave way, the Glasgow physician who examined him found merely that he was carrying a stimulant "which he said he was in the habit of carrying when making flights. In case he had heart trouble or had to make a parachute landing."

At first Hess was taken to a Glasgow hospital, but he was moved quickly and secretly; obviously, for the safety of himself and those about him in case the Germans should attempt to liquidate him in an air raid.

Hitler Summons His Leaders

kara, Turkey; it was added that she was at her home in Germany.

In speeches made over the last year, Hess had said on one occasion that there could be no peace "until England is definitely struck down"; again he said that "divine justice" had turned against Britain.

It was declared emphatically that his flight would in no way affect internal or foreign policy; that it would not interfere with the pursuit of the war.

It was conceded that the extraordinary affair would be a great boon to British propaganda, but a spokesman remarked:

"Any use made of him will be completely disregarded by the German people because there is no way of knowing under what circumstances he may be forced to talk."

No Peace Proposal.
It was emphasized, too, that if the British had "any idea he is coming with a peace plan they are doomed to disillusion."

A qualified informant thus summed up the official German view:

"The assumption that his curious conduct—which is a deep personal tragedy—was due to mental disorder is the most charitable view to be taken, and that it is to be held in view of the present knowledge."

Adolf Hitler himself took over Hess' old army office, which had been called "office of the deputy of the Fuehrer," and renamed it "party chancellery."

As to Hess' former position, a German spokesman explained it this way:

"What happened 18 months ago (this was at the time that Hess was made Hitler's deputy) was that Hess was not promoted to third-ranking Nazi, but was demoted from second place.

"As deputy to Hitler he would normally have succeeded to the Fuehrership. But in view of the abilities and temperaments of the available men, Hitler by formal act chose Goering as his immediate successor."

The Nazi party's communiqué stated that Hess apparently had thought that through "old English acquaintances" he was "still able to bring about an understanding between Germany and England through personal action," and then went on:

"In fact, as already confirmed through a report from London, he bailed out of a plane in Scotland near a place which he wanted to visit and apparently was found there injured."

"Rudolf Hess, as for years was known in the party, suffered seriously physically and recently resorted increasingly to various aids, mesmerizers, astrologers and so forth."

"In how far these persons also carry the blame for the mental derangement which induced him to take this step is also a point of investigation."

"It, however, also is imaginable that in the last analysis Hess intentionally was lured into a trap by the British."

Won't Alter Course.
"The entire manner of his procedure confirms in any case the previously stated fact that he suffered from hallucinations. He knew of the fabric of Rudolf Hess' Messerschmitt with bullet holes, nearly robbed Britain of the war's most sensational prisoner before he parachuted to earth, it was revealed today."

Official British quarters said the machine-gunning chase and the fact that Hess' plane had neither ammunition nor fuel, may have forced him to take to his parachute instead of attempting a landing on the estate of the Duke of Hamilton, approximately 10 miles from Glasgow.

Many bullet holes were found in the wreckage of the German fighter plane. The British Spitfires, their machine-guns blasting, were said to have driven Hess' unarmed Messerschmitt down to within a few hundred feet of the ground at one time.

Turkish Mobilization
Credits Are Augmented

NEW YORK, May 13.—(P)—The German radio said in a dispatch from Ankara today that the Turkish national assembly had passed supplementary armament credits of 13,000,000 Turkish pounds for further financing of permanent mobilization.

German Ambassador Franz von Papen returned to Turkey yesterday and was believed to have carried proposals for German-Turkish collaboration.

Jury Will Probe Storage Contract

Members of city council's police committee, and very likely Mayor LeCraw, will be called before the Fulton grand jury in connection with a special investigation of a contract awarding the storage of seized liquor and lottery cars to the American Garage on Ivy street.

The grand jury is planning to investigate what connection, if any, Fred Martin has with the garage ostensibly operated by J. C. Banks. Martin is a convicted bootlegger and former lottery racketeer.

For the past five years city police have sent seized and wrecked cars to Spider's Garage on Highland avenue, where a $1 towing fee and a 25 cents per day storage fee is charged. Under the new contract with American Garage, signed two weeks ago, a $2.50 hauling fee is charged, of which $1 is given to the city of Atlanta.

F. D. R. Confers With Experts On Navy Patrol

Tobey's Friends Advise Him Not To Ask Vote on Convoys.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—(UP) President Roosevelt reviewed neutrality patrol operations and military base construction problems with top-ranking Navy and Army officers today as the nation waited his next move in the battle of the Atlantic.

He met first with Brigadier General Thomas M. Robbins, assistant chief of Army Engineers, who is in charge of all military engineering construction, including that done on the newly acquired bases in the Atlantic. Later, he presumably discussed with Rear Admiral Ernest J. King, commander in chief of the Atlantic fleet, conditions growing out of extension of patrol activities to safeguard shipments of war materials to Great Britain.

Details Withheld.
No details of the conversations were made public. They were held after cancellation of the third White House press conference in eight days to allow the President to recuperate completely from an intestinal attack. He remained in the White House proper on orders of his physician, Rear Admiral Ross T. McIntire, but the President's secretary, Stephen T. Early, said Mr. Roosevelt is "in great shape" and "everything is all right."

Meantime, the senate headed into a show-down fight on the use of convoys when it brings up tomorrow the house-approved bill authorizing the President to requisition idle foreign ships in American ports. Senator Charles W. Tobey, Republican, New Hampshire, still is determined to offer an anticonvoy amendment and force a record vote on it, insisting it will be "a vote for or against war."

Non-interventionists, convinced that the amendment will be rejected, have urged Tobey not to offer it. They argue that defeat of the proposal would strengthen forces pressuring for convoys.

As the senate girded for the battle of convoys, other developments in the capital touched on the international situation. They included:

The Maritime Commission announced that it has asked operators of American inter-coastal vessels to consider putting 50 of their 108 ships into the 2,000,000-ton shipping pool being set up for national defense and to aid Britain.

The commission invited six Great Lakes shipbuilding companies which operate 11 yards to attend a conference here tomorrow to determine what Great Lakes facilities can be utilized, and to consider feasibility of constructing seagoing vessels under 450 feet in length. These ships would be moved to the Atlantic via the Illinois river drainage canal and the Mississippi river.

Move to Stop Leaks.
The Senate Military Affairs Committee approved an administration bill designed to close avenues through which raw materials from the Philippine Islands pass into Axis countries.

Meantime, agitation continued in congress for an embargo on shipments of aviation gasoline, petroleum and petroleum products to Japan, Italy and Germany. Representative Robert F. Rich, Republican, Pennsylvania, demanded that shipments be stopped immediately.

15,000 Warned To File Returns

There are 15,000 taxpayers in Fulton county who must file tax returns at the courthouse by June 1 or go on the defaulters' list that carries a 10 per cent penalty.

Receiver Guy Moore said yesterday that although the closing date was May 1 his office will continue to accept returns until the first of June, when the defaulters digest will be compiled. Last year the digest was drawn in August.

The number of delinquents this year is already 5,000 under the number of defaulters in 1940, Moore said.

Owners of property and motor vehicles must file returns or be assessed arbitrarily, and then pay a 10 per cent penalty.

Hess' Plane Hit By Spitfire Guns

GLASGOW, Scotland, May 13.—(UP)—The guns of pursuing British Spitfire fighter planes, stitching the fabric of Rudolf Hess' Messerschmitt with bullet holes, nearly robbed Britain of the war's most sensational prisoner before he parachuted to earth, it was revealed today.

Official British quarters said the machine-gunning chase and the fact that Hess' plane had neither ammunition nor fuel, may have forced him to take to his parachute instead of attempting a landing on the estate of the Duke of Hamilton, approximately 10 miles from Glasgow.

Many bullet holes were found in the wreckage of the German fighter plane. The British Spitfires, their machine-guns blasting, were said to have driven Hess' unarmed Messerschmitt down to within a few hundred feet of the ground at one time.

U. S. Bluntly Warns France Not To Give Army to Nazis

VICHY, May 13.—(UP)—United States Ambassador William D. Leahy today warned Marshal Henri Philippe Petain against supplying Germany with any military aid, amid Nazi assertions that France may be forced back into the war against both the United States and Britain.

Leahy's warning was delivered to Marshal Petain in a fifty-minute conference just before Vice Premier Admiral Jean Darlan's return from Paris and Berchtesgaden bearing a "new offer" of collaboration handed to him by Adolf Hitler and Nazi Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop.

Darlan was said to have brought from Hitler an offer to enter into a new working agreement or "preliminary peace pact" with France, replacing the Compiegne armistice agreement and leaving France virtually intact.

Conferring with Petain after Admiral Leahy had delivered the United States warning and left the Hotel Du Parc, Darlan was understood to have told the aged French chief of state that a basis for "rapprochement and collaboration" exists within the framework of France's existing commitments.

The Nazi-controlled French press in Paris demanded, meanwhile, that France immediately reaffirm her continental solidarity with Germany and make it clear that she will take up arms on Germany's side if the United States enters the war against Germany.

This follows the anti-American warning of the Vichy government's representative in Paris, Count Fernand de Brinon, who is a close friend of Pierre Laval, and whose statements have marked a turning point in French policy.

De Brinon, talking to representatives of the American press in Paris, said that France would fight and would rally the rest of Europe to fight the United States if any American attempt were made to take the French West African port of Dakar by force.

The council of ministers was convened for 11 a. m. tomorrow to hear Darlan's detailed report. Darlan then will return to Paris, bearing authority to carry on the negotiations with the Germans.

Undoubtedly Ambassador Leahy's statements to Petain also will come before the council of ministers.

Fractional Aid Manning Urges Is Not Enough, Full, Open Part Menzies Says

Australia's Participation Cited To Refute 'European War' Idea.

NEW YORK, May 13.—(P)—Australian Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies tonight urged America to a "single-minded effort in the production of materials of war and in the delivery of those materials to those places in which they can be effectively used."

"It may be that there are still many of you who believe that some decent fraction of your effort will suffice," he said in an address prepared for the NBC-Blue network. "I beg of you to understand that it will not. Whether you are neutral or belligerent—and that is for you and nobody else to decide—our cause, which is your cause, can not be made victorious by half measures."

He declared, however, that the United States' aid need not include the sending of armies, asserting that the British empire "will fight this war out, even if it fights alone against many enemies."

"I am not asking you to pull our chestnuts out of the fire," he went on. "The British empire is not asking for charity. It is full of brave and resourceful people. What we shall give to the winning of the war is all that we have—no less..."

"Does anybody in the United States imagine that Australia would be fighting in this war if this was a merely European struggle? Of course not. Our choice is between the regimented barbarity of the Hun or the honest and impartial rule of the self-made law..."

WASHINGTON CALLED 'CENTER OF COMBINE'

ROME, May 13.—(P)—The official Italian news agency Stefani said tonight that well-informed circles in Washington think "Roosevelt is working out an enormous political and financial combination in agreement with London and Israel."

The plan, Stefani said, "is the uniting of one political and economic union of all peoples of the English language, thus launching to history a sort of super-confederation of peoples of British origin, the center of which, of course, should be Washington."

Commenting on the Washington visit of Australian Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies, Canadian-United States co-operation and recent speeches by General Jan Christiaan Smuts, prime minister of the Union of South Africa, Stefani asserted that "British dominions tend evermore toward Washington."

Sutton Instructed To Seek U. S. Aid

Dr. Willis A. Sutton, city school superintendent yesterday was instructed by the Atlanta board of education to do everything possible to obtain approval of a senate bill providing $300,000,000 to equalize educational advantages and to expedite vocational education as a part of the national defense program.

The board passed unanimously a resolution urging the mayor and council to set a bond election this year and to include sufficient funds to properly house school children.

'World Traveler' Hess Invited by Texas House

AUSTIN, Tex., May 13.—(P)—The Texas house of representatives, observing that Rudolf Hess "has become famous overnight as a world traveler," adopted this resolution today:

"The house has on several occasions heard eminent authorities on world affairs, and nothing could give members of the legislature more pleasure than to extend traditional Texas hospitality to this fine gentleman."

The visit could be at his whimsy, the resolution added.

German Taxes Yield Return Of 10 Billion

Soundness of Nazi Economics Proved, Finance Chief Says.

BERLIN, Wednesday, May 14.—(P)—Government tax returns for the fiscal year 1940, which previously had been estimated at 25,000,000,000 marks (about $10,000,000,000) actually yielded 27,000,000,000 marks, State Secretary of Finance Fritz Reinhardt said today.

The increase proved the soundness of German economics, the announcement added.

Reinhardt predicted even higher revenues for 1941, estimating the total at 30,000,000,000 marks. To that he said, must be added 5,000,000,000 marks in administrative fees plus contributions of communities, proportionate payment of the protectorate of Bohemia and Moravia and occupation costs in occupied territories.

All these sums are estimated at about 10,000,000,000 marks, thus bringing the total income anticipated for 1941 to 40,000,000,000 marks (about $16,000,000,000).

Reinhardt asserted that Germany never would be forced to resort to printing presses to finance the war. He also predicted that the special war tax would be dropped at the conclusion of the war and that there would be a commensurate reduction in income taxes.

1 How much iron in the body? A. About 3 or 4 grams—or about the amount of iron in a small nail.

2 Sources of iron for the body? A. Beef juice, parsley, fresh lima beans, canned apple butter, bran, beef liver, molasses, egg-yolk, etc.

3 How many red-blood-cells has a (a) man—(b) woman—(c) child? A. Man about 5 millions to cubic millimeter. Woman about 4 1/2 millions to cubic millimeter. Child about 4 1/4 millions to cubic millimeter.

4 Healthy average of hemoglobin in the red-blood-cells? A. Man—100%. Woman—90%. Child—82%.

5 How does a lowered blood count affect our health? A. Reduces energy, weakens the body, lowers resistance to disease.

6 Do our diets supply enough iron? A. Many times they do not. We then have nutritional deficiencies. This deficiency will not strike people dead. It will reduce the level of vitality, lower the living, thinking, working and enjoying capacities of a people.

7 Is iron a MUST element for the body? A. Yes.

8 How much intake iron should a body have a day? A. Adults—15 milligrams. Children over 6 years—10 to 15 milligrams. Expectant or nursing mothers—about 20 milligrams.

9 How can I tell if I need more iron? A. Paleless is often an indication, so is loss of appetite, loss of weight, lack of energy.

10 Is appetite also a factor to my health and how does it work? A. Food keeps the body in constant repair as well as furnishing body heat and energy. Appetite and stomach digestion go hand in hand. To make use of the food eaten it must be digested and to be digested, the appetite must function in a happy pleasing manner.

11 What is a good way to improve appetite and blood strength? A. Bear in mind iron absorption is dependent to a great extent upon its form and solubility in the acids of the stomach. S.S.S. is designed to attain this end.

S.S.S. is ideal for those wishing to build back strength and energy as Nature intended... It improves appetite... revives lagging stomach digestion... gives you the iron in a form which may be absorbed.

If you tire easily, lack a keen appetite, look pale and worn-out, have lost weight... a frequent sign that your stomach digestion is poor and your blood is weak due to lack of iron... then do try correcting these conditions—in the simple easy way—by starting a course of S.S.S. Tonic.

S.S.S. Tonic may be just what you need, in the absence of an organic trouble or focal infection. A trial will convince you. Begin a course of S.S.S. Tonic treatment at once and note how quickly your strength will come back.

S.S.S. is time-tested... scientists have proved it, too. At all drug stores in two convenient sizes. Ask for the big 20-oz. bottle... at a saving. Remember, S.S.S. Tonic helps to "make you feel like yourself again."

Georgia Association of Petroleum Retailers will elect new officers at a dinner at 7 o'clock tonight at the Imperial hotel, according to W. A. Sims Jr., president.

John S. Martin, of Atlanta, has been appointed to serve on a committee of 24 to investigate wages in the knitted and men's woven underwear and commercial knitting industry. It was announced yesterday in Washington by Philip B. Fleming, administrator of the Labor Department's wage and hour division.

Bank clearings yesterday totaled $11,400,000 as compared with $9,200,000 for the same day last year, the Atlanta Clearing House Association announced.

WANTS COTTON STOCKINGS—Georgia's first lady, Mrs. Eugene Talmadge, yesterday advocated cotton stockings for women, pointing out that it would be a boon to the cotton producer, far more economical to the wearer, and just as attractive as silk hose.

'Wear Cotton,' Mrs. Talmadge Urges Women

Georgia's First Lady Willing To Start Ball Rolling.

Mrs. Eugene Talmadge, Georgia's First Lady, is all for putting women back into cotton—literally, from head to foot.

National Cotton Week opens May 16 and Georgia being a leading cotton producing state, Mrs. Talmadge yesterday afternoon spoke her mind on the subject.

"The least we women can do to help the Georgia farmer is to wear clothes made of the product he produces," she declared. "It's a big piece of foolishness to import our fabrics when Georgia has such a surplus stock of cotton which we ought to get rid of."

Not the least of her argument is that women should wear cotton stockings and—furthermore, she's willing to start the ball rolling. She thinks, however, it's up to the manufacturer to put sheer, attractive cotton hose on the market.

"I wore them 30 or 35 years ago and I still think cotton stockings with a sort of clock weave are very attractive," she declared. "Anyhow, that's a small bit of patriotism we Georgia women could observe."

Down in Telfair county Mrs. Talmadge personally operates her own farm, so she knows some of the odds against which the farmer has to battle. She says if women are going in for wearing cotton clothing in a big way the producer will have to stick to long staple cotton, because it makes the finest fabric. And she thinks, too, that the farmer should do his bit toward pushing cotton consumption by using cotton bagging to bale his crop instead of a jute product.

WEEK TO BE OBSERVED BY PENNSYLVANIA—HARRISBURG, May 13.—(AP)—"Pennsylvania is happy to join her sister states of the south and west in the observance of National Cotton Week," May 16 to 24, Governor James said today.

"I have been advised that, principally because of war conditions, the cotton producing states are faced with a surplus of some two million bales," the Governor said. "The success of the cotton industry is of particular concern to Pennsylvania because this commonwealth leads the nation in six distinct phases of cotton manufacture and stands second among all of the states in the total manufacture of cotton goods."

Figures indicate that the national defense program will consume only some 10 per cent of the cotton crop. A domestic market must be found for the remainder. Cotton manufacturing and processing is a $283,000,000 industry in Pennsylvania.

Dan H. Morgan, of Savannah, yesterday was appointed a member of the State Welfare Board after his brother, Philip, also of Savannah, had declined appointment. Philip Morgan informed the Governor he was unable to accept the appointment for a three-year term expiring in March, 1944, and recommended his brother.

AMOCO does it again!

The Company that gave America its FIRST special motor fuel is now FIRST AGAIN...with new, mightier HYDRO-FORMED AMOCO!

Over twenty-five years ago, the American Oil Company gave Amoco-Gas to the public. It was the first special motor fuel—making possible the high compression automobile motor.

At first people smiled—wondered why a special fuel was necessary. Then they tried Amoco-Gas, and discovered that they obtained performance and economy absolutely impossible for any ordinary gasoline to deliver.

Steadily Improved, Year by Year

As motors became more powerful, as compression increased, as operating temperatures moved up, Amoco-Gas kept pace, stepping up quality and efficiency with each motor improvement.

Amoco Does It Again!

For years chemists and engineers have striven to improve gasoline efficiency even more, by regulating its combustion in the cylinders. They knew that if a way could be found to cut down violent, explosive shock, much power-waste could be eliminated—transformed into useful energy.

Hydro-forming Solves The Problem!

Now the problem has been solved by the revolutionary new Hydro-forming Process of refining gasoline, pioneered by the American Oil Company, and used to make Hydro-formed Amoco-Gas.

Hydro-forming imparts new and even mightier qualities to Amoco. Most important of all, it permits combustion control—Flame Control!

Flame Control Gives Cushioned Power!

Hydro-formed Amoco-Gas burns in a different way. Flame Control reduces violent, explosive shock, cuts down waste, and produces more useful energy. Cushioned Power now replaces severe detonation—delivers a satin-soft, s-m-o-o-t-h surge of energy—a flow of driving power that follows the pistons through their entire course. Vibration is hushed—destructive pounding on bearings and moving parts is reduced.

Better Road Octane!

Official results of road tests by Industry Committees show that conventional gasolines, on the average, lose octanes on the road. Hydro-formed Amoco-Gas actually gains them—surpassing laboratory figures because its knock-arresting constituents become vaporized, distributed more evenly and impartially to all cylinders alike.

An All-time High in Quality!

Good as Amoco-Gas has always been, it is now mightier than ever—reaching an all-time high in quality and efficiency. Everything that makes for outstanding performance moves to new levels. Point for point, it is the finest motor fuel we have ever produced.

Test Hydro-formed Amoco-Gas yourself! Compare it feature for feature, with any other gas you have ever used. See how it outdates your old conception of quick starting, of getaway and pickup, of pulling power and mileage.

Never before have we made such a mighty motor fuel!

Mrs. Ritchie Honored by Athens Group

Named by Jaycees as 'Georgian of the Year.'

ATHENS, Ga., May 13.—(AP)—Because of remarkable progress made by the Women's Field Army for the Control of Cancer under her leadership, with untold benefits resulting to her fellow Georgians, Mrs. H. B. Ritchie has been selected by the Athens Junior Chamber of Commerce as "the Georgian of the year."

Announcement of the selection was made today and Mrs. Ritchie was chosen from among a number of nominations from all parts of the state for the honor, because of her work in this humanitarian field. In addition to the title, she will be presented an engraved parchment certificate of outstanding service to Georgians.

In announcing the selection of Mrs. Ritchie, the board of directors of the Athens Junior Chamber of Commerce, pointed to her leadership of the field army since it began organized campaigns to stamp out cancer in Georgia several years ago.

Hess Said Forcing Nazi Hand

what an army officer should not have married.

That scandal precipitated a major shakeup in the military establishment, with Hitler himself taking over the supreme command; but even that could not quell the rising tide of rumor and conjecture which finally had the German army "in open revolt" at certain garrison towns.

Something had to be done to show the world the German army was as strong and well-disciplined as ever; that it would march in any direction at the Fuehrer's command.

Counteracting Drive. While the rumors of its collapse were still circulating something definitely was done. The German army marched into Austria, swiftly and efficiently occupying the whole country and, in effect, daring France and England to do something about it.

They did nothing, and the world forgot about the Blomberg scandal and the rumors of German military collapse. It was too obvious that the army had not collapsed.

Now a far more fantastic and ominous scandal has shaken the pillars of Germany's military prestige. In countries fighting Germany the wild hope has flared up that this, at last, may be the first sign of that long-awaited inner collapse of the Hitler regime.

Certainly it was only natural to assume that if Rudolf Hess, the Fuehrer's close friend and synonym throughout Germany of absolute devotion to Hitler, had to jump into a Messerschmitt and make a wild dash for Scotland, something must be awfully wrong in the heart of Nazidom.

Germans Will Be Perturbed. Even Germans willing to accept without question the official Nazi explanation that Hess was "mentally deranged because of physical illness" when he fled, could hardly escape being deeply perturbed over the event.

Even in Germany, no conjecture advanced in foreign countries as to the reason for Hess' flight could seem any more fantastic than the circumstances of the flight itself.

The surprise in Britain was greater than a full-scale invasion attempt could have achieved; for Britain was expecting an invasion, and 4,000,000 men were under arms in readiness to repel it.

Instead, one Scottish farmer, with a pitchfork, was all it took to capture the No. 3 Nazi of the German Reich.

The jubilation in Britain over this surprise turn of events would be bitter enough for Hitler-Germany to swallow; but its effects on German prestige in such countries as Turkey, France, Spain and Russia could be damaging in the extreme.

There was only one thing to do after the Blomberg scandal: Put the German army into motion and show the world.

Today there is an even greater urgency. If the Hess scandal continues to echo and re-echo through the world—whether of whether Hess talks and tells all or sulks and says nothing—the doubts created in Turkey, Spain, France and other countries whose "collaboration" Germany is seeking may hamstring Hitler's whole program of a "new order" in Europe.

Therefore Germany must launch a new drive in some direction with the least possible delay. Only new and smashing victories can kill the doubt that has been created as to the internal solidity of German military power.

This is equally true if Hess' escape to Scotland turns out to have been the prelude to a basic shift of authority from Nazi party hands into military hands.

Such a shifting of power into military hands long has been predicted by some observers as a natural consequence of the war in which Germany is engaged. They have argued that the longer a war lasts and the greater the strain, the more irresistible becomes the tendency—especially in a country with a strong military tradition—for the people to turn to generals rather than politicians for salvation.

In other words, the longer the war lasts the easier it becomes for generals to take control.

If such a shifting of power were taking place against Hitler's will, the very fact that Rudolf Hess has been so close to Hitler and reputedly so devoted to him for so many years might be enough to put him in a very dangerous spot.

Maybe Too Loyal. In other words, it is possible he had to flee the country because he was too loyal to Hitler. Or maybe he was merely suffering from "hallucinations" that something was afoot against the Fuehrer which he could not frustrate.

Speculations at this juncture, however, only deepen the mystery; for Hess himself was a rather mysterious person. He was close to the Fuehrer, but always in the background. For years, he was Hitler's private secretary, and as deputy fuehrer he continued to be a good private secretary.

Ranked No. 3 among the Nazis, but as a personality he was far down the list.

During my own sojourns in Germany I must have seen Hess hundreds of times, for he was nearly always at Hitler's elbow. But I only remember distinctly two occasions when I noticed definitely he was there.

Once was when he made a speech—not a single word of which I could recall now; the other time was when I was introduced to him. Of this occasion I remember nothing that he said, but only his somber face and bushy eyebrows.

One could never come away from Hitler or Goebbels, or even Jew-baiting Julius Streicher, with such vague impressions as that.

Even the former British ambassador to Germany, Sir Neville Henderson, after a rather comprehensive opportunity to get acquainted with Nazi leaders, reported to his government that he never got beyond first impressions with Hess.

He sized him up as "aloof and inscrutable, with a strong fanatical streak which would be produced whenever the occasion required it."

Perhaps Sir Neville now will have a better opportunity to chat at leisure with Hess, and to learn the secret of his mysterious personality as well as the secret of his fantastic flight.

Oden Is Removed From Office

Department of Public Welfare, directed questioners to Governor Talmadge's office, saying he had no comment on the board's action. He is chairman of the board.

Contacted by telephone, Dr. Oden said he had just heard that he had been relieved of his duties at the state hospital but added he had not been informed officially. Asked to comment on what were the possible reasons for his removal, Dr. Oden merely said, "Maybe I haven't made a good superintendent." He refused to elaborate. He did say, however, that he had heard of no specific charges or criticism of him or his work.

Editor Critical. C. B. McCullar, editor of the Milledgeville News, however, has been particularly critical of the superintendent in his newspaper and the two have been bitter enemies for several months.

They almost came to blows a year ago at a hearing before the welfare board on Dr. Oden's suspension of a nurse. Welfare officials intervened to prevent a fight. McCullar was at the capitol yes-

U. S. Food Must Reach England, Says Wickard

RALEIGH, N. C., May 13.—(AP) Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard told 5,000 farmers here today that the United States must make certain that vital food and war machines reach England safely and "on time."

"If the United States acts quickly enough and effectively enough, the striking force of this country and of the British empire can check Hitler," Wickard asserted. "If we are too late, the striking force of the rest of the world, under Hitler domination, is likely to converge on us."

Rare Orchids Bloom on Plant Sent as Gift to Mrs. Inman

By SALLY FORTH.

• • • EXOTIC ORCHIDS are blooming on a plant in the drawing room of Mrs. S. M. Inman's Peachtree street home. The plant was shipped as a gift from Miami, but not a single blossom had unfolded when it arrived here. The morning afterward a lavender petal was in view and one by one the petals unfolded to form the exquisite flower with a purple throat and yellow accents.

Three orchids form the lovely cluster on each stem and now there are six lovely flowers in bloom. The plant suffered none at all by being transplanted to this climate, and is thriving in the atmosphere of Mrs. Inman's drawing room.

The orchids have gone visiting several times to cheer shut-ins, among whom were Mrs. Frank Inman, who is at Crawford Long hospital, and Mrs. Don Pardee at Emory hospital. Intimate friends of Mrs. Inman have viewed the plant and been amazed at its beauty and the unfolding of its flowers.

• • • FEW VISITORS ever receive a warmer welcome than that accorded Grace Powell (Mrs. Edward) Hammond, of Washington, D. C., who arrived last week to be the guest of her parents, Judge and Mrs. Arthur G. Powell, on Peachtree street.

Creating even more of a stir than Grace herself, however, is her adorable baby daughter, Ann, who celebrated her first birthday last December. Ann bears the name of her maternal grandmother and already is beginning to show the charm for which the feminine members of her family are known.

Ed will join his wife and daughter here next week and will be accompanied by them and Judge and Mrs. Powell to Savannah for the annual bar association meeting.

The Hammonds' stay here, however, will be all too brief, for though they will return here from Savannah, they expect to stay only through the first week in June.

• • • WHEN THE IVY BALL takes place next Friday evening at the University of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia, Betty Regenstein, one of the city's loveliest belles, will be in attendance. Betty plans to leave tomorrow to attend the dance, which is the most brilliant affair of the year at the university. Mrs. Meyer Regenstein, who will accompany her pretty young daughter, will continue on to New York, however, where she will spend the weekend.

In addition to the ball, on Saturday members of the Zeta Beta Tau fraternity and their dates will spend the day at Atlantic City, returning that evening to Philadelphia, where a dance will be held at the chapter house. Betty's escort for the weekend, Edward Phillips, of Chicago, you see, is a member of that fraternity.

Betty and Mrs. Regenstein plan to return to Atlanta on Monday for Betty to resume her studies at Washington Seminary, where she is a member of the senior class.

• • • THE WEDDING of lovely Georgia Oliver and William Akers Jr., which takes place this evening at the First Presbyterian church at 8 o'clock, occasions the return of a host of former Atlantans and visitors already well known in this city.

Second only to the ripple of admiring comment which will accompany the entrance of this evening's dainty bride will be the enthusiastic welcomes accorded the out-of-town wedding guests.

The recipient of unusually warm greetings will be the groom-elect's sister, Ida Akers Morris, who accompanied her husband, Allen, to Charleston, S. C., recently for residence. Ida has been sincerely missed by her many friends here, and her return for her brother's wedding has been keenly anticipated. Allen, you know, is engaged in naval activities in Charleston, ton.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl F. New and Mrs. R. H. Lyon, of Baltimore, arrived here some time ago and were among those who entertained for the popular bridal couple. Charlie and Virginia Hart Sumner are here from Camp Hinesville, where the former is engaged in military duties. Lieutenant Herbert Reynolds is also here from Hinesville, while Lieutenant Fred Cantrell obtained leave

Your Daughter Has a Right to Know

It is every mother's duty to tell her daughter physical facts. How much better that she learn them from you, rather than from girls her own age. In feminine hygiene, facts may be distorted, or wholly untrue. Result, many brides use douches of over-strong solutions of acids which can actually burn or scar delicate tissues. Today, there is no need to use such deadly solutions. Science has given us Zonite. Non-poisonous, non-caustic, yet kills germs, bacteria on contact. Actually destroys undesirable odors. Protects personal cleanliness. Most important, safe for delicate tissues. Over 20,000,000 bottles already bought. Free Book Tells Intimate Facts. Give your daughter this frankly written booklet, "Feminine Hygiene Today," which you can get FREE, sent to you postpaid in plain wrapper. Swim Suits Demand Well-Shaped Figures

By Ida Jean Kain.

You may be normal weight and not have a good figure and get away with it—until the swim suit season calls for thigh exposure. This portion of the figure seems to be the measurement most in evidence in a beach brevity and it is the one most affected by the lack of muscle tone.

Hop into your swim suit and check up on your thighs. A lovely measurement varies from 19 inches for the slight frame to 22 inches for the heavy frame. Or if you want to go by the Hollywood standard, your thigh should measure three and one-half times the size of your wrist.

The tape should be circled about the largest part of the upper leg—slightly more than halfway from knee to hip. With normal weight and a perfect thigh measurement, you are not likely to have the disfiguring lumps and hollows that mean flabby musculature. But you can trust your eyes and conscience more implicitly than scales and tapes measure. If you haven't exercised, it's high time you took a few thigh beautifiers:

Lie on your back on the floor with knees flexed and feet together on floor near hips. Very slowly and forcibly spread knees as far apart as possible, then bring together just as slowly. Concentrate on the outward movement, making the hip and thigh muscles work. This exercise is especially good for developing a smooth inner thighline. Repeat slowly 10 times.

Rest for a minute, then go on to the next thigh streamliner: Lie on the back on the floor with legs straight in the air at right angles to trunk. Separate the legs in a wide Y, then cross, separate again, and cross over. Continue for five counts, rest, and do five more counts.

For an exercise and massage combination, try this: Lie on back on floor with knees flexed and feet on floor, one slightly ahead of the other. Now, clap the inner thigh together hard! Keep clapping until you are tired. That will help to give you a nicely tapered inner thighline.

To smooth the outer thighs, sit on the floor and lean back on left elbow. Have left leg straight down on floor but turned slightly outward to bring the soft pad of fat on the side into direct contact with the floor. Flex right knee with foot on floor close to hip. Have right hand on floor in back. Are you set? Then use left forearm, left foot, right foot and right hand as levers and raise yourself off floor, then come down hard on the fat pad. Keep going for 20 counts, then repeat on other side.

Left Overs Make Regal-Looking Pudding

By Sally Saver.

Lovely to look at, delicious to eat—it's an elegant dessert made of left-over bread or cake.

Sometimes you have bread, cake, buns or coffee ring left over. Wouldn't you be proud to turn it into a pudding such as the one pictured, and have the family admire you for your cleverness. The regal look of this pudding in no way suggests its humble origin, and may be used as the dessert of a company dinner.

Antoinette Pudding.

3 cups milk.
2 tablespoons butter or margarine.
3 egg yolks, beaten.
1-2 cup granulated sugar.
1-8 teaspoon salt.
1 teaspoon vanilla.
2 large crumbs of bread, rolls, cake or sweet buns.
1-2 cup currant jelly.
3 egg whites.
Dash of salt.
6 tablespoons powdered sugar.
Scald milk with butter. To beaten egg yolks add granulated sugar and salt. Combine with milk and add vanilla. Put bread or cake crumbs or a mixture of each into a greased baking dish, and pour the milk and egg mixture over them. Set dish in a pan of hot water and bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) about 50 minutes or until pudding is firm. Make meringue from the egg whites, add a dash of salt, then slowly add the powdered sugar, beating until meringue is stiff. Pile meringue in peaks, making four indentations and in each indentation place a heaping teaspoon of jelly. Return pudding to slow oven to brown meringue. Serve hot or cold.

Questions about foods, recipes, cooking and serving will be answered by Sally Saver. Write or phone The Constitution or WA, 6565.

MY DAY: Boys' Clubs Deserve Community Support

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

NEW YORK CITY, Monday.—Saturday evening I heard the record which Lynn Fontanne made of the poem, "The White Cliffs of Dover," by Alice Duer Miller. It is a beautiful recording and anyone who likes the poem will enjoy it.

These records were a gift and together with them came two volumes of Sir Cecil Spring-Rice's "Letters and Friendships," which I had been seeking, but which had to turn up in a second-hand book sale. I am not a good person at watching for any particular item. Life becomes hurried and I forget to look, and so I am most grateful to the thoughtful and kind friends who gave me these treasures which are going to be a continuing joy.

Rather sadly I left Hyde Park right after lunch and reached New York City in time to go to the broadcasting studio and be present at the National Youth Administration broadcast which closed American Music Week. At this last concert they sang music by Negro composers. One particularly beautiful song, "Ode to America," composed by Jules Bledsoe, renowned American singer, was dedicated to the President.

Yesterday morning I went to the big house and enjoyed a chat with my mother-in-law and Ethel, Franklin Jr.'s wife. She has brought their small boy to stay a while, for she will be more or less on the wing while the destroyer to which Franklin Jr. is assigned moves around.

My mother-in-law was going over speeches for the two broadcasts she made, as she has done in years past on Mother's Day. There is no one I know who sets greater value on the duties and pleasures of motherhood and who is certainly an appreciative person to speak to other mothers on that day.

A quiet dinner and an evening spent at home after seeing some people immediately after the broadcast.

Today I had several appointments. At noon I received the France Quand Meme Relief Committee pin from Madame Houdry, president of the committee. From there I went to the luncheon given by Mr. Robert Porterfield of the Barter theater.

Here I gave the award to the winner of their annual prize. This year it went to Ethel Barrymore for her performance in "The Corn Is Green." I certainly enjoyed the play when I saw it early in the winter, so I paid my tribute to her on this occasion with real warmth and admiration.

Just a week from today, on May 19, Boys' Club Week will be celebrated throughout the United States. This year marks the 35th anniversary of the founding of Boys' Clubs in America. These clubs have meant so much to the youth of our country that I hope every community will show its appreciation to the boys and to those who have worked in the organization and have made it as strong and useful as it is today.

Broken Blood Vessel Traces Can Be Erased by Physician

By Dr. William Brady.

Forgive me, won't you, for mentioning the medical term telangiectases. It means dilated distant blood vessels, or what, just between ourselves, we call little broken blood vessels. Not "capillaries"—capillaries are not vessels at all, just spaces between cells as seen by aid of the microscope, not by the naked eye. They are minute red wavy or twisting lines in the skin, which disappear momentarily under pressure but reappear immediately after the pressure is removed.

These are most common over the wings of the nose, the cheeks, the belly, the shoulders. Men have them along the lower borders of the ribs and over the shoulders. Telangiectases are nothing more nor less than varicose venules—dilated venules. It is logical to suppose that these dilated, live veins, venules, become varicose (dilated, enlarged, but not "broken") for the same reason that larger veins do in some persons, due to lack or loss of something, we can't say just what, which is essential in the make-up of the blood vessels. It is just a conjecture of mine that the essential something may be calcium and vitamin D. I'm just wondering whether the common deficiency in these nutritional factors may not account for such weakness in veins and venules.

Telangiectases over the cheeks and sides of the nose often accompany acne rosacea ("rum blossoms"); but everyone knows that many a teetotaler has one or both of these cosmetic annoyances, so we can admit frankly that varicose venules have no particular significance.

The little red lines may be obliterated in any case if the individual has the patience to submit to the necessary treatment—micro-injection, similar to the standard injection treatment of ordinary varicose veins, but the venules must be injected with a very fine needle introduced accurately into the central venule of each group of dilated venules, under good illumination and the aid of the binocular loupe. The technique of this method was described by Dr. H. I. Biegleisen in the Jour. A. M. A., June 23, 1934.

It is tedious, both for operator and patient, but what's a little tedium when a woman wants to improve her personal appearance?

A few dilated venules over the cheeks or sides of nose may be obliterated by electrolysis, but beware of the "dermatologist" who is not a qualified physician and surgeon.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Occasional bellyache diagnosed by physician as mild appendicitis. Only treatment he advised is removal of appendix if I have acute appendicitis, and no seeds in diet. (H. T.)

Answer—Either you have appendicitis or you haven't. There is no ground for the notion that seeds have anything to do with appendicitis.

Well-Groomed Lashes Look Longer

By Winifred Ware.

Your eyes are one of your most effective features, and your eyelashes probably enhance the expression and beauty of your eyes more than anything else. You should make every effort to take care of your lashes.

You can keep them well groomed by one simple act. There's a little jar of cream which is just for eyelashes. Keep this attractive jar right on your dressing table and every morning remember to rub a little on your lashes right down to the edge of the lid. It's one eye make-up which isn't too theatrical for daytime use.

Principally this cream is to keep the lashes from becoming dry and brittle. Being dark brown it also makes the lashes darker as soon as it is applied. You know, with sun and exposure, the very tips of your lashes usually fade out, so that they don't appear as long as they really are. The darkened cream will color these ends just enough to make them show up.

Many people, too, have trouble with the edges of their lids getting dry and perhaps itching during the day. This cream works down into the lids, soothing and softening and preventing this uncomfortable feeling.

The glossy finish created by the cream actually makes the lashes appear longer and thicker. They also have every chance of growing longer, for the softening cream keeps them from breaking off in stubby ends.

I can tell you where you can get the cream and how much it costs if you'll call me at Walnut 6565 or write me in care of The Constitution enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Raft-Robinson Feud Turns Out To Be Fake

By Sheila Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, May 13.—The George-Raft-Edward G. Robinson feud certainly fooled a lot of people in this town, including me. Every time I went on the set,

Robinson would say how he disliked Raft and vice versa, and their hatred really seemed on the level—until this happened: A boy from the studio publicity department was seen in a downtown newspaper office peddling photographs of a fierce fight between the boys. In one picture they had their hands clenched, glaring at each other. In another, they were advancing in slow motion, they were tearing each other to bits. Even without the uncensored grin on Robinson's face, the feud would still be a phoney. Confucius say—People who are really angry do not stand still long enough to pose for pictures.

Robert Taylor and Metro's desire to have him play Simon Bolivar, the South American patriot, have run into a snag. The government down there is demanding an older man—someone like Jean Gabin or Spencer Tracy, who originally was scheduled for the role. There has also been a request for Ester Fernandez, Mexican star, to play the feminine lead. Miss Fernandez, who is enormously popular in South America, was brought here by Paramount five months ago, but she has yet to make a picture in Hollywood.

Rosaland Russell's hats continue to cause laughter. She came on the set the other day wearing two red birds. "Okay, shoot," said the director. And Roz ran screaming to the exit.

Plump Alfred Hitchcock would like to receive more of the $5,000 a week Boss Selznick gets for loaning the director to other studios. Hitchcock's pay is $1,500. Which isn't bad either, although small when compared with the $150,000 per picture paid Frank Capra.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 13.—(AP)—President Paul Florence, of the Birmingham Baseball Club, today suspended Emil Dejonghe without pay. Florence said Dejonghe, infielder, reported a leg injury and left for his Detroit home. The player became eligible Sunday and took part in a doubleheader.

Orlando Wallops League Leaders

It was Orlando's turn Monday night to keep the first-place DeLand Red Hats in check in the Florida State League pennant race, and the Nationals responded with a 9-to-1 triumph over the leaders.

The Red Hats held to their two-game margin, however, as the Gainesville G-Men nosed out second-place St. Augustine, 10-9. Leeburg bunched five runs in the first inning and five in the seventh to trounce Ocala's Yearlings, 10 to 2. Floyd Thieroff, of Daytona Beach, produced the pitching gem of the evening, striking out 15 men and allowing only five hits as the Islanders defeated Sanford, 6 to 1.

Golfers A Wait 3 Tournaments In City, State

Atlanta Open Is Scheduled for East Lake Next Monday.

By AL SHARP.
Atlanta and Georgia golfers are looking forward to three competitions which will be held within a week, starting next Monday.
First on the schedule is the City Open, slated at East Lake next Monday. Next will be the Southeastern P. G. A. meet at Capital City Tuesday, when the pros will shoot for places in the National P. G. A. Third on the list is the National Open qualifying battle at the National Golf Club, double play, Birmingham a week from Monday.

The City Open is expected to attract a large field, including the defending champion, Dave Black, and Gene Dahlbender Jr., the 17-year-old player who came second last year at Druid Hills in spite of a two-stroke penalty for hitting a playing partner's ball on the last green.

Atlanta will be represented at the Birmingham trials for the Open, which is slated June 5, 6 and 7, at Fort Worth, Texas. Among the Atlantans going are Dahlbender, Carling Dinkler Jr. and Morton Bright. Others probably will be there, too.

Rome will send Pro Bill Harmon, Dick Hackett, who won the Birmingham Invitation; Alvin Everett, national left-handed champion, and Jennings Gordon, Georgia Amateur champion.

The Southeastern P. G. A. trials will bring the south's leading professional players here for a stiff battle. They will be playing for the title of National P. G. A. champion, which starts July 6 at Denver, Colo.

Howard Beckett, pro at Capital City, is vice president of the national organization. Only P. G. A. players are eligible to compete.

One of the best stories we've heard lately was enacted on the golf course, although it had little to do with the game. The characters will have to remain anonymous, but the friend who told it will vouch for every word.

His caddy, a lanky colored boy with feet wide as a road, greeted him one day with:
"Mr. Tommy, I guess I won't be with you much longer. After all these years of caddy for you, I sh' 'hates to leave, too."

"What's the matter, Lem?" the player replied. "Army going to get you?"
"Yes, suh, they sho' is. I gotta get examined tomorrow."

"Isn't there anything wrong with you, Lem? You look awfully skinny to be accepted by the Army."
"Naw, suh, not a thing, I reckon."

"What floor is the doctor on?"
"The sixth."
"Well, Lem, when you go up to see the doctor, why run up the steps and maybe you'll get along all right."

The next time the player went out to play Lem greeted him as usual.
"Didn't they get you? That's fine."
"Naw suh, not yet," was Lem's reply.
"What happened?"
"Well, boss, I did the right thing, all right. I didn't just run up to the sixth flo'. I did more than that. I runned all the way to the top of the building, and it's fo'teen sto'es high. Then I runned back down to the sixth flo' to the doctor's office."

Commission Backs Verdict for Soose
NEW YORK, May 13.—(UP)—The New York Boxing Commission today upheld Friday night's decision giving Billy Soose victory over Ken Overlin in their middleweight title fight at Madison Square Garden.
Overlin's manager, Chris Dundee, appeared voluntarily at the commission meeting and asked that the unanimous decision of the two judges and referee be reversed.

The commission not only refused Dundee's request, but warned Dundee that he would be penalized in the future if he again "cut-up" in the ring, making violent gestures to show his disapproval of a decision.

Wildlife Clubs Form in Clarke And Spalding

Groups Sponsored by State Federation To Hold Meetings Friday

By JOHN MARTIN.
Clarke and Spalding counties have joined the "wildlife wake-up" class and Friday night will hold meetings as forerunners to big campaigns to enlist hunters, fishermen, farmers and others interested in the propagation of game and fish in active work.

These sessions, sponsored by the Georgia Wildlife Federation, an organization whose activities are designed to establish a non-political, commission-director setup in the state's wildlife administration, are expected to attract large groups from Athens and Griffin, with subsequent members coming from near-by cities and rural sections.

The Spalding club will elect officers, according to Chairman T. H. Wynne Jr., and seek to accomplish a membership, comparable to that of the Cobb County Conservation Club. This outfit is one of the most active game and fish organizations in the state and has sprung into a power virtually overnight under the whip-hand of M. E. Fowler and Jimmy Hancock.

The Junior Chamber of Commerce, of Griffin, is sponsoring the Spalding county group and is just one jump ahead of the Augusta Jaycees, who plan big things in Richmond and adjoining counties before the middle of June. Similar undertakings are being planned in Rome and Floyd county, as well as many others.

It is highly significant that the Jaycees in many cities of Georgia are coming over to wildlife, one of the state's most important resources. Failure of passage of many badly needed reforms in game laws is one of the chief reasons for increased support of this movement to pull Georgia out of the game and fish abattoir.

The Wildlife Federation will hold a state-wide meeting at Macon June 12 and important expressions of leading conservationists are certain to spring from it. Such continual fomentation is bound to bring about desired reforms before the curtain falls.

Mobile Advances To Second Place
MONTGOMERY, Ala., May 13.—(AP)—Mobile pulled into second place in the Southeastern League scramble today after taking a 14-to-10 victory over Anniston in a 29-hit slugfest.

Pensacola, who had been tied for second place with the Shippers, fell beneath the Gadsden Pilots, 5 to 3, with Howard Belknap pitching steady ball for the winners.

Georgia Frosh Won 10, Lost 1 In Big Season
ATHENS, Ga., May 13.—Coach Bill Hartman, whose Georgia freshman baseball team has just completed a near-perfect season, today announced numerals would be given 13 boys.

The Bullpups, meeting outstanding high schools and junior colleges in the south, won 10 ball games and lost one during the season, one of the best records ever compiled by a first year baseball team.

Mainstay of the freshman hurling staff was left-handed Joe Gaston, a lanky kid from Atlanta, who entered school the last quarter after finishing work at Boys' High.

Gaston lost one game, an 8 to 1 decision to Piedmont College, but he was exceptionally effective the rest of the time.

Aiding and abetting the left-hander in pitching duties was Billy Russell, a blond youngster from Milledgeville, whose football prowess attracted attention last fall, and Rendon Hill, raw-boned youngster who, if he develops, will be one of the best right-handers Georgia has had in many years.

In Charley Trippi, graceful first baseman, the Bullpups had a distance hitter good as the next one. It was up to Dick McPhee, who gained some fame as a football player with the Georgia frosh last year, Audley Tucker, "Red" Boyd and Russell to supply most of the other offensive power.

All these boys, plus Ervin Alsobrook, Bill Clark, Forrest Truett, Oaks, Pete Orlich and Bill Holbrook were awarded letters.

Gilbert Has It All Figured Out

'Atlanta Can't Keep Up Pace,' He Says

Manager Larry Gilbert, whose Nashville Vols have won 11 of their last 14 games and vaulted from seventh to second place, isn't counting on the Atlanta Crackers running away with the Southern Association pennant.

He figures the great Atlanta club can't keep up the pace that has given them 26 victories in the 31 games they've played. "Atlanta's been playing great ball," the veteran Gilbert declared. "They've been getting line pitching and hits when they count, but no club can continue at the pace they've been setting."

"We've been playing nearly .800 ball for the last two weeks and that's more than one can expect. In a short time I think the margin will be greatly reduced and we'll have a great race."

Atlanta won No. 26 Monday night, combining the usual good pitching and heavy hitting to down Birmingham, 7 to 0, and gain a two-to-one decision in the three-game series.

Action on Chattanooga Ball Club Delayed by Lack of Quorum

Directors Seek To Swap Nine For Mortgage

Another Confab With Washington Officials Slated Today.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., May 13.—(P)—Return of the Chattanooga Baseball Club to the Washington Senators in settlement of a $40,000 mortgage was delayed today when directors of the Southern Association enterprise failed to present a quorum for approval of executive committee action.

"I have heard no criticism of the committee proposal," said a spokesman for the directors. "Too short a notice probably prevented a sufficient number from attending. Another meeting may be attempted tomorrow."

The executive committee, representing 1,700 stockholders in the fan-owned club, yesterday negotiated with President Clark Griffith, of the Senators, an agreement to take over operation, effective Friday. The agreement would return to the Senators all property of the club, including Engel stadium, in final settlement of the mortgage remaining from the 1937 purchase, when $60,000 was paid in cash.

The club operated at a loss during 1940 and again this season and principal stockholders decided against advancing more money. Prior to negotiating a $20,000 loan to open the season, stockholders vested in the directors authority to dispose of the club in the event it failed to meet expenses.

Dixsteel Clashes With Power Nine

Leonard Mayo's Dixsteel nine, and Skipper Cobb's Power Club will meet this afternoon at Glenn Field for the lead in the Atlanta Commercial Baseball League. They have three victories and one loss. Mayo will take the mound for the Steel nine to try and stop the hard-hitting Power club, which only last Saturday blasted 17 hits in defeating Central Cafe, 10-3. The game will start at 4 o'clock with Shi and Herrin umpiring.

U. S. Military Academy Takes Vandy Tailback

NASHVILLE, Tenn., May 13.—(P)—C. B. Daniel, promising freshman tailback at Vanderbilt University, has been appointed to the United States Military Academy, Head Coach Red Sanders said today.

The 195-pound Tupelo, Miss., boy was a standout as a freshman and in spring practice. He will leave for West Point in July, and will be eligible for Army football. Sanders termed the loss of Daniel "quite a blow," but added "This is too fine an opportunity for him to pass up."

JOCKEY TUMBLES—Jockey E. Grayson fell from his mount, Big Charley (No. 2), at the seventh jump in the second race of the Radnor Hunt at Crestbrook Farms.

The big horse did not go down. Royal Day, which finished third, is shown passing by.

Six Bulldogs Enter SEC Track Meet

ATHENS, Ga., May 13.—Georgia will send its weakest track squad in history to the Southeastern Conference meet in Birmingham this week, but Coach Forrest (Spec) Towns isn't counting on scoring a single point.

It will be a far cry from the showing of the Bulldogs last year when they were runners-up to Louisiana State, despite the fact only five Georgians were entered in the meet.

Coach Towns will carry "Red" Keuper, Lewis Woodruff and Bill Godwin for the weight events; Lamar Davis, in the dashes; Bill Hudson, pole vaulter, and probably Benton Dodd, broad jumper and 440-yard dash man.

ANOTHER CARD.

NEW ORLEANS, May 13.—(P) Ed "Kid" Lavigne, heavy-hitting New Orleans prep school star, has been signed by the St. Louis Cardinals and will join the Decatur, Ill., baseball club after his graduation June 6.

ALL IN THE GAME

Jimmy Dykes, the ex-Cracker, as an enthusiastic solitaire player.

Frank writes, "The most enthusiastic solitaire player in America is Jimmy Dykes, manager of the White Sox, who habitually remains in the clubhouse until a minute before game time laying red upon black. It is not the fascination of the cards which keeps Dykes in the team boudoir so much as his extreme repugnance for umpires. Mr. Dykes himself explains he refrains from going on the field until the last moment because he doesn't want to look at the umpires, the bums, before it is absolutely necessary."

Frank's story has to do mainly with the jockeys of baseball, the player needlers and the umpire baiters, and he notes that "baseball men are unanimous in agreeing that Cleveland literally was talked out of the pennant by the greatest demonstration of mass jockeying in modern times. The ballplayers themselves confide that every member of the Indian troupe, with the exception of Feller, was visibly affected by the rough riders of the dugouts—and Cleveland missed the World Series by only one game."

SEC Records Fairly Safe in Annual Meet

Ball, Auburn, Is Given Chance To Smash 2-Mile Mark.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.
With a couple of exceptions, they may as well be shooting at the moon as trying to set new records in the Southeastern conference track and field meet Friday and Saturday at Birmingham.

Yep, from this distance the old marks seem as safe as a new defense savings bond, with the exception of three events which may be broken if the weather is good and the athletes better.

Most likely to be broken, according to George Griffin, Tech's track coach, is Chick Alridge's two-mile record of nine minutes, 36 seconds. And the man most likely to break the ex-Tech star's mark is Johnny Ball, little, but long-striding Auburn star.

DID WELL.
Ball has turned in a 9:38 this season which, Griffin says, is better than Alridge did before he set the record at Birmingham.

Only two other records, the pole vault and 220-yard dash, seem to be in any danger whatsoever, but it is possible a new all-time champion will be crowned in each of these ere midnight Saturday.

Three men, Hall of Auburn; Weeks, of Tech, and Descamps, of Alabama, have a chance to better Alabama's Downey's 13 feet, 6 3/4-inch pole vault mark. And L. S. U.'s Billy Brown may better Tulane's Gerry Neugass' record of 20.9 sec. in the 220-yard dash.

Then, too, it is possible Brown will do better than his own 9.5 in the 100 or Ed Hamm's 25 feet, 6 3/4 inches in the broad jump. But Griffin doesn't consider it likely.

OTHERS SAFE.
Otherwise, the rest of them seem safe as money in the Fort Knox treasury.

Griffin says its L. S. U. again for the title, but by not by such a big margin as usual. He figures the Tigers will nose out Alabama for first place with Auburn and his own Jackets fighting for third. Here are the existing conference records:

100-Yard Dash: Brown (LSU), 9.5 sec.
220-Yard Dash: Neugass (Tulane), 20.9 seconds.

440-Yard Dash: Hardin (LSU), 46.8 sec.
880-Yard Run: Rogan (Kentucky), 1 min., 54 sec.

1-Mile Run: Rogan (Kentucky), 4 min., 16.3 sec.

2-Mile Run: Alridge (Ga. Tech), 9 min., 36 sec.

120-Yard High Hurdles: Towns (Georgia), 14.1 sec.

220-Yard Low Hurdles: Cate (Georgia), 23.1 sec.

Shot Put: Torrance (LSU), 53 feet, 6 1/2 inches.

Discus: White (Tulane), 154 feet, 10 1/2 inches.

Javelin: Salisbury (Georgia), 212 feet, 10 1/2 inches.

Broad Jump: Hamm (Ga. Tech), 25 feet, 6 3/4 inches.

Pole Vault: Downey (Alabama), 13 feet, 6 3/4 inches.

High Jump: Horne (Alabama), 6 feet, 3 1/2 inches.

Relay: LSU (1938), 3 min., 18.5 sec.

Team Wrestling Set Tonight

Luttrell, Freeman Face Tough Test

Should tonight's heavyweight team wrestling match at the auditorium produce half the action and fireworks of last week's battle, the customers will have no squawks coming. Three of the members of last week's cast are back ready to go. They include Cowboy Luttrell and Herbie Freeman, who tonight will oppose Dorv Roche and Harry Kent. Roche was also in last week's brawl.

Old-timers said there never had been anything here like last week's show, which has created more talk than any mat card in years. Team wrestling is a free-for-all, a battle royal and a circus all in one. Something is happening every minute.

The bold, bad guys, Luttrell and Freeman, are apt to find the smaller but faster Roche and Kent quite an assignment. Marvin Jones and Pat Newman collide in the semi-final. Howard Brown faces Jack Kennedy in the first match at 8:30.

L.S.U. Golf Champ Is Injured in Fall

BATON ROUGE, La., May 13.—(P)—Louisiana State University learned today that the fall Earl Stewart, Southeastern conference golf champion, took from a horse Sunday was a severe jolt to its chances of keeping the National Intercollegiate championship it holds jointly with Princeton.

Physicians said Stewart suffered a collarbone fracture which will keep him out of play at least five weeks. The tournament will be held at Ohio State late in June.

Pigeon Club Holds Race Next Sunday

Members of the Atlanta Homing Pigeon Club will open the racing season with "old" birds next Sunday when prize members of their lofts are loosed from Dalton, Ga. More than 300 bird members of club lofts will be raced this season on a program which includes two races from Dalton, two from Manchester, Tenn., two from Hopkinsville, Ky., and the Springfield, Ill., 515-mile race as a feature event of the summer.

A feud between the lofts of W. L. Chaney and H. E. Kelly is expected to enliven the season. Chaney's Black Boy and Kelly's Little Red will hold the spotlight when the two clash in the feature races.

An innovation has been introduced this season due to the interest of wives of members. They will be awarded trophies for their entries and their finish, in addition to cash prizes.

THE AMERICAN NAVY

'Old Ironsides' Becomes a Tradition And Ships Maintain U. S. Independence

Within weeks—perhaps days—the United States Navy will be ordered to deliver the goods to embattled Britain.

What is this Navy?

What were its beginnings and how was it built?

What of the men who man the ships?

This is the third of a series of articles in which will be told the story of America's growth in naval strength from the days of the Revolution to today, when the Navy represents the sum total of all the skill of American artists and mechanical geniuses.

By WILLIAM G. KEY.

There is no chapter in American history more glorious than that of the United States Navy in the War of 1812. It is the only instance in the history of the British Empire that the vaunted navy of Britannia met repeated defeats at the hands of the foe.

Without any great ships of the line (battleships of the sailing fleet) the United States frigates harried the British navy so viciously that tradition terms it a major victory. Then a quixotic Russian emperor suggested to an England weary of 20 years of fighting a titanic war against Napoleon's armies that a peace would be no more than wise. Had it not been for the brilliant single-ship actions of this American Navy, the people of this country would have been ready for peace long before. Confronted with the collapse of the Napoleonic armies and the loss of French naval strength that kept the British fleet from concentrating upon American shores, the young republic was in desperate straits.

The Army of the United States in the War of 1812 floundered about with some 225,000 troops opposing 16,500 British soldiers and getting licked right and left.

Perry in Command.

On the other hand, there was Perry on Lake Erie, Macdonough on Lake Champlain and the mighty exploits of the Constellation and the Constitution on the high seas.

Oliver Hazard Perry not only fought his ships, but he built them, trained the crews, and by his victory gained command of the upper Great Lakes and eliminated any danger of invasion through that section of Canada. His nine ships had been thrown together of green lumber, but they held together for the three hours necessary to blast Barclay's British squadron into submission. James Lawrence's dying words, "Don't Give Up the Ship," flew from the mastheads of Perry's fleet, and nailed another plank in the Navy's quarterdeck of tradition.

But tradition to the contrary notwithstanding, the decisive naval action of the war was fought a year later on Lake Champlain, when a similarly thrown-together squadron defeated a larger British squadron supported by adequate land forces, Macdonough, a brilliant tactician, so placed his ships in Plattsburg Bay that his flank could not be turned, and despite heavier gunpower the British were defeated so completely that when the news reached London the Duke of Wellington advised the British government to accept a peace that accepted the status quo ante-bellum.

"Old Ironsides." On the high seas, the story was all that of the great frigates fished in 1797 and the privateersmen against the full might of the British navy. Ship for ship, the Americans could not be outclassed and the classic naval battles of the war have been a high point of American history from that day.

The Constitution became "Old Ironsides" on August 19, 1812, when it smashed the British ship Guerriere within the space of 30 minutes. A sailor, seeing the British cannon balls bouncing off the stout sides of the Constitution, shouted in glee that she had sides of iron. This unnamed and unsung star gave American history one of its best-known characters, if indeed a ship may be termed a character. On no less than three occasions this charmed vessel, later immortalized by Oliver Wendell Holmes, fell in with a British fleet and so great was her speed and so great was the seamanship of her Captain Hull that she escaped the traps to fight again another day.

In 1830, when an unfeeling country proposed to dismantle "Old Ironsides," there was written that great poem of indignation which to this day has made the Constitution the apogee of patriotism to school children the country over. Angered, Holmes wrote:

Nail to the mast her holy flag,
Set every threadbare sail;
Give her to the god of storms,
The lightning and the gale.

She was saved.

Today, the Constitution is the mother ship of the Navy. Her tradition is that of a fighting fleet. The Navy she bred has been nurtured in that tradition. The cold facts of history, in which she fought a gallant if forlorn fight, cannot rob her of her glory, or the Navy of the heritage to which she gave birth.

Gallant though this navy fought, wide though the seas they roamed, here in this country the people faced one inescapable fact. The British navy blockaded every important port. Ships rotted at their moorings. The country was split by appeasers. Merchants and honest burghers were ruined. The Navy did what it could, and without it this nation would again have become a colony of England. There still was much to learn.

Tomorrow: Peace strips another fighting fleet.

Loses Lottery Suit.

Lottery ticket vendor Maria Martorelli has lost the prize money and the suit brought against her three years ago. The supreme court in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, decided against her. Ten fractions, representing one-half of a federal lottery ticket, were stolen from the woman and soon afterward the ticket won the lottery. Maria was held responsible for the loss of the fractions, but claimed the $2,500 prize money. Purchasers of the stolen tickets claimed they had bought them in good faith and should have the prize.

Mascot of Fliers.

The South African Air Force in Kenya has a large zoo of wild animals and has adopted it as mascot. In a district famous for big game the fliers have collected at their camp lions, cheetahs, gazelles, zebras, giraffes and baboons. A two-footed grass snake is usually found coiled on the commanding officer's desk. One squadron has adopted "Thunderbolt," a young baboon, and pilots insist that he pet them on the head before they take off.
